Ford Nears Magic Delegate Total

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — With party rules and platform planks as the issues, Gerald R. Ford and Ronald Reagan are heading into the first critical test of their delegate strength at the 1976 Republican National Convention.

Reagan and his strategists chose the issues on which the key votes would be taken tonight, but as the time for balloting drew near Ford's delegate total in the contest for the presidential nomination moved to within three votes of the 1,130 needed for victory.

The latest Associated Press survey, based on legal commitments and publicly stated preferences, gave Ford 1,127, Reagan 1,036, with 96 uncommitted.

For weeks the Ford camp has claimed the President had 1,135 votes, while Reagan's managers have said the former California governor was certain of 1,140 votes on the first ballot for the presidential nomination.

But those claims were viewed largely as part of the intense political, psychological warfare the two men aimed at each other and at the uncommitted delegates who hold the key to the aspirations of both men.

The roll call votes tonight, occurring just 24 hours before the presidential balloting, will be taken as a clear sign of which man will leave Kansas City as the Republican nominee for president.

A decisive victory for either man could cripple the other's chance for the nomination.

The Reagan forces are geared for a floor fight tonight on their proposal to require that each presidential candidate name his proposed running mate before the balloting on the presidential nomination.

Reagan backers call it the "right to know" rule. The Ford camp describes it as Reagan's attempt to force the President to endure an uproar similar to that which Reagan encountered when he named Sen. Richard S. Schweiker as his choice for the vice presidential nomination.

Ford's backers called the Reagan proposal the "misery loves company" rule.

The other major fight planned by the Reagan camp involves the foreign policy plank in the Republican platform which will be presented to the convention for approval.

Entitled "Morality in Foreign Policy," the Reagan amendment to the platform would insert a statement implicitly critical of the policy of détente with the Soviet Union pursued by Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The Reagan statement would put the Republican party on record as supporting many of the criticisms of Ford foreign policy that the former California governor used as campaign issues.

Nonetheless, some Ford advisers were recommending that the President accept the amendment and avoid a divisive floor fight, according to sources close to the campaign.

But Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Ford's convention floor manager, said a final decision on how to deal with the proposal probably wouldn't be made until Ford strategists could assess the vote on the rules, scheduled to come up before the platform committee report.

The proposed plank include the following statements:

—"Ours will be a foreign policy which recognizes that in international negotiations we must make no undue concessions; that in pursuing détente we must not grant unilateral favors with only the hope of getting future favors in return."

Poison Turns Up In Atlantic Fish

WASHINGTON (AP) — Traces of the roach poison Kepone, the cause of liver and brain damage in Virginia chemical workers, have turned up in nonhazardous levels in fish caught hundreds of miles from the plant where it was made, a federal agency says.

The pesticide residue was found in migratory fish caught by commercial fishermen in Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean off the coasts of Delaware, New Jersey and New York.

The Food and Drug Administration said its first samples of fish taken from the Chesapeake and Atlantic Ocean showed traces of Kepone, but not at levels considered hazardous.

The initial results are preliminary, however, and it will be at least 10 weeks before federal scientists can determine how seriously Kepone pollution has spread up and down the East Coast, the FDA said.

The agency said seven samples of fish from Chesapeake Bay — four of croaker and three of bluefish — showed Kepone residues ranging up to .09 parts per million (PPM). That is just short of the .1 PPM level that would trigger the FDA into action to keep the fish off the market.

No residues of Mirex, a fire-ant poison that is chemically related to Kepone, were found in the Bay fish samples, the FDA said.

The FDA added that four redfish, one drum and one flounder caught off the Texas Gulf Coast had no detectable Kepone residue. Mirex testing on those fish has not been completed.

The report was the first from the FDA's sampling of fish from the Chesapeake Bay, the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico in the wake of the Kepone disaster at Hopewell, Va.

Dozens of employees of the now-defunct Life Sciences Products Co. of Hopewell were found last year to have seriously high levels of Kepone in their blood and were suffering from tremors, chest and side pains.

Family members of workers also were found to have Kepone contamination and in at least one case a son born to a contaminated worker was born with a liver malfunction. Doctors said it might have been caused by Kepone passed from mother to child.

The pesticide also was discharged into the James River, which empties into the Chesapeake. The state of Virginia has banned commercial fishing on the river.

Life Sciences produced Kepone for the Allied Chemical Corp., which has been sued for more than $100 million by former Life Sciences workers.

On Monday, Life Sciences pleaded innocent in a Richmond, Va., court to conspiring to violate federal pollution laws in connection with the James River contamination.

The FDA said it had extended the testing to Mirex, which has been used extensively throughout the South against fire-ants, because it may contain as much as 10 per cent Kepone as an impurity. Under certain conditions, Mirex can be naturally converted into Kepone.

Sampling over the next 10 weeks may include crabs, oysters, clams, spot, sea-trout, catfish, flounder, striped bass, and white perch, the FDA said. Sampling will be done around Long Island, N.Y.; Atlantic City, N.J.; Norfolk-Newport News, Va.; Morehead City, N.C.; Charleston, S.C.; Brunswick or Savannah, Ga.; Daytona Beach and Miami, Fla.

Volcano Explosion Brings Earth Tremor

POINTE-A-PITRE, Guadeloupe (AP) — The 15 French scientists monitoring the Soufriere volcano were evacuated from the danger zone Monday night after an explosion inside the mountain caused an earth tremor felt 20 miles away.

Dr. Robert Brousse of the University of Paris, the leader of the team of volcanologists, planned a helicopter flight today to try to penetrate the heavy cloud mass covering the 4,813-foot peak of La Soufriere.

The volcano on Basse Terre island has been emitting ashes, steam and fumes for more than a month. The team of scientists says a major eruption is imminent, and the 72,000 people living in the danger zone — more than 20 per cent of Guadeloupe's population — were evacuated last weekend.

"It's impossible to say when it will happen," Brousse told reporters, "but I think that eight to 15 days from now we'll see some very grave events."

The volcanologists had been keeping watch on La Soufriere from Fort St. Charles, near the volcano. Slight tremors started rocking the area around 7:45 p.m. Monday, and civil security chief Max Vincent telephoned one of the scientists.

"He was really frightened," said Vincent. "They moved immediately into a shelter inside the fort."

The tremors continued. After the big one was felt in Pointe-a-Pitre, 20 miles northeast of the volcano, Jean-Claude Arousseau, the administrator of the French islands, ordered a navy boat to move the men from Basse Terre to Terre de Haut island, about eight miles from the larger island and 14 miles from the volcano's peak.

The scientists set up a new observation post at Ft. Napoleon, where a seismograph was already monitoring the volcano.

La Soufriere, French for the sulphur mine, last erupted in 1956 but there was no lava flow and no loss of life then. Fissures opened in side of the mountain July 8 and began belching gas, steam, ash, stones and mud. The activity intensified last Thursday.

Relatives took in two thirds of the refugees. The rest were housed in schools in 12 communities, all more than 40 miles from the danger zone.

UMW Fine Dismissed

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A $700,000 fine issued last fall against the United Mine Workers of America was dismissed Monday by U.S. District Judge K.K. Hall.

The contempt fine stemmed from a suit brought by the Kanawha Coal Operators during a wildcat strike last summer that idled more than 80,000 miners.

Meanwhile, a federal judge dropped contempt charges against 213 miners Monday, removing the last block to a virtual end of a wildcat strike that stopped Eastern coal production for a month.

U.S. Circuit Court Judge H.E. Widener said he set aside the charges because the miners have returned to their jobs.

The miners are all members of Local 1759. The strike began as a local dispute against Cedar Coal Co. and expanded to include eight states after U.S. District Judge Dennis Knapp fined the local $50,000 for contempt of court. Up to 100,000 miners participated in the walkout.

Knapp has since dropped his fine, imposed because the miners ignored his order to return to the mines.

Control Board OKs Probe Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With an eye toward uncovering welfare abuse, the state Controlling Board has granted Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson $300,000 to expand his investigation of aid-to-the poor programs.

"I can't think of anything more crucial than this particular program here," Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, said Monday in backing the auditor's request for funding to hire 25 additional examiners.

Despite unqualified support from Meshel, chairman of the Joint Select Committee on Welfare, the grant slipped through by a bare 4-3 majority. All three Republican members of the Control Board voted against it after a spokesman for the Office of Budget and Management argued that Ferguson already had enough money to hire the extra staff.

"We do not feel an emergency exists," said Rhodes Administration budget aide Pete Rose.

Ferguson's fiscal officer, Arthur Sherman, disputed the OBM projections and said the auditor was already falling behind in regular audits of local governments, due to budget restraints. Sherman also cited several unexpected outlays which he said had drained allotted funds.

Sex-For-Pay Charge Won't Be Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Colleen Gardner says she is "totally bewildered, totally floored" by reports federal prosecutors have decided against pressing criminal charges on her accusations that her congressman-boss demanded sex in return for continued employment at premium pay.

The congressman, Democrat John Young, said in a statement from his Victoria, Tex., office Monday that he was "pleased but not surprised at the position taken by the Department of Justice relative to the allegations made against me."

Young's Washington office simultaneously was disclaiming knowledge of such a decision, even though the Victoria office had distributed a copy of one of the reports. It had been published in the Washington Star.

A Justice Department spokesman said he could neither confirm nor deny the reports that the prosecutors will recommend dropping the probe for lack of evidence of fraud. Young had called the allegations "poppycock" from the beginning.

A lawyer close to the prosecutors said that they "never thought they'd find much there as far as a criminal indictment, anyway.... She did do some work, after all," so government payroll funds would not have been fraudulently disbursed.

Asked about the possibility of sexual extortion as a charge, he replied, "That was never charged."

Told of that, Mrs. Gardner said Monday night, "That's very strange. I thought that's what I was charging."

She indicated that prosecutors told her one hour's work a month could satisfy the fraud law under the unique working conditions for congressional employees.

Employees of members of Congress are specifically exempted from most federal labor laws and serve at the pleasure of the official.

Registration Of Rural Voters Set

A voter registration drive will be conducted by the Pickaway County Board of Elections in rural villages during the month of September.

Workers will be registering persons who have not previously voted, those who changed their addresses, and those who have changed their names.

The drive will be conducted from 12 noon to 8 p.m. at each of the following locations:

- Sept. 1 — Ashville Council House.
- Sept. 3 — Commercial Point Fire House.
- Sept. 8 — Orient Town Hall.
- Sept. 10 — South Bloomfield Municipal Building.
- Sept. 13 — Derby Township House.
- Sept. 15 — New Holland Town Hall.
- Sept. 17 — Williamsport Fire House.
- Sept. 20 — Tarlton Fire House.
- Sept. 22 — Darbyville Township House.
- Sept. 24 — Five Points Township House.
- Sept. 27 — Atlanta Methodist Church.

The board delayed action on the matter earlier this month because Sherman was not available to answer questions about the auditor's budget.

At that Aug. 2 meeting, the supervisor for welfare investigative audits claimed that some 3,000 ineligible state and local government employees were on welfare rolls.

The calculation was based on a check of Public Employee Retirement System records. Ferguson, a Democrat, wants to use extra auditors to scan other retirement system records for possible ineligible.

Meshel won 5-2 control board approval for another addition to the state payroll, a $21,000-a-year, full-time executive secretary for the State Employees Compensation Board, of which he is a member.

Circleville Overpaid $30,019 In Gas Taxes

Circleville was overpaid $30,019 in gasoline tax money from June 1975 until May 1976 according to a report from Thomas E. Ferguson, auditor of the state.

As a result, the city will not receive any gasoline tax money until the debt owed the state has been eliminated during future municipal distributions.

Circleville is one of 95 municipalities which was overpaid according to Ferguson's office.

A news release from the office stated that because of an adjustment of the motor vehicle count — based on district of registration — between the 1973 and 1974 license years, the number of vehicles listed as titled in each municipality has raised or dropped.

Overpayments ranged from $1 to Marshallville, Wayne County, to $30,019 to Circleville, and occurred in eight distributions made between June, 1975 and May, 1976.

The auditor has requested that the Bureau of Motor Vehicles re-examine its records to ascertain an accurate count of motor vehicles registered in a number of these municipalities since a drastic drop in registrations is recorded between the 1973 and 1974 motor vehicle license years.

He also suggested that communities attempt to ascertain on their own an accurate count of the vehicles owned by persons living within their bounddaries. The information, he added, is accessible at the Bureau of Motor Vehicles in Columbus.

Municipalities receive their gasoline tax distribution based upon $1 per vehicle licensed within their borders.

Circleville was apparently the only municipality in the county that was overpaid. Ashville received $462, Commercial Point $78, Harrisburg $216, New Holland $107, Orient $1,038 and South Bloomfield $732.

Officials at the state auditor's office and at the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles were unable to explain the overpayment to Circleville which was the largest in the state.

Elizabeth Ray No Reporter

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Washington sex star Elizabeth Ray made her debut as a political reporter Monday night and found working the Republican convention more difficult than working the bedrooms of Congress.

"This is more work than I thought," said the panting, perspiring siren as she was pursued by a pack of reporters and photographers at Kemper Arena.

"At least in Washington I could close my office door," added the former secretary, who traded for a tape recorder the typewriter she said she never used anyway.

In fact, the glossy blonde in a backless white dress was more of a celebrity than most of the politicians attending the convention.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices edged upward today, continuing Monday's gradual advance.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up more than a point in the early going, and gainers outnumbered losers by a slight margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said hopes appeared to be persisting that a market rally might be possible once the Republicans formally choose their presidential candidate Wednesday night.

Uncertainty over who would get the GOP nomination has been cited as one inhibiting influence on the market this summer.

Xerox was the early volume leader among NYSE stocks, up 1/2 at 66. A 125,000-share block traded at that price.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average gained 2.58 to 992.77.

Logan Elm Board Discusses Curriculum

The Logan Elm Board of Education met in special session Monday night to discuss the curriculum at the high school. High School principal Dow West was present to provide information on the language program.

After a lengthy discussion, the board re-employed Mrs. Elaine Lindsey to teach French on a part-time basis. There is a small enrollment in the class at present but the board was hopeful that the program would expand when school starts. Mrs. Lindsey taught in the district part-time last year.

Also employed during the meeting was Jan Hurd to teach science and to be assistant football coach; Sandra Olliver, to teach English on a part-time basis and to be a home tutor; Daniel Boyd, to help with the pre-season football conditioning. Boyd is a teacher in the district.

One teacher was denied a request for a four-week leave of absence and another who submitted a resignation was not released from his contract.

The supplemental pay was increased for the girls' coach, Kathi Thompson, to coach volleyball and softball.

In other action, the board declared it impractical to transport several EMR students and directed local superintendent John Henn to submit an application to the state department of education to see if the students could be conveyed to school by means other than regular school bus.

Clayton Stahr, elementary guidance counselor, was given permission to attend a training session at the Hocking Technical College for administration of the General Aptitude Battery Test and Opal Sims, school psychologist, was given permission to attend a special study institute on Sept. 14 in Columbus.

The next board meeting was changed from Sept. 6 until Sept. 9 due to the Labor Day holiday. Logan Elm Board members are Don Bower, Virginia Wood, Roger Hobbie, Frank Seimer, and Robert Bowers.

South Bloomfield Calls Session On ORC Laws

A special meeting to act on a package ordinance designed to update traffic laws and bring them in line with the Ohio Revised Code has been called by South Bloomfield Council members. The meeting will be 8 p.m. Wednesday.

In other business during regular session Monday, councilmen okayed the first reading of the village income tax ordinance. Two more readings are required before the ordinance becomes law. Effective date would be Jan. 1, 1977.

Members also sought to find a replacement for Robert Ison, who resigned as a council member Aug. 2 because of employment commitments. Application for the new Public Works Grant project will be made by the village, after council discussed the aid program. Projects discussed were repair of the municipal building, curbs, gutters, and sidewalks for Route 23, and storm sewers for the town.

South Bloomfield has received confirmation from the Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission on preliminary Step I plans for the sewer project.

The Federal Revenue Sharing check will be deposited directly into the bank, according to Clerk Fern Bozman.

Everett Costlow, street commissioner, will be completing the paint job at the council house, and will be erecting a flag pole in front of the building. Weed killer to curb the growth of vines, weeds, and poison ivy will be applied around poles in the village.

Councilman Richard Wysiecki was appointed administrator of labor standards for the park project.

The next regular meeting of council will be Sept. 8 at 7:30 p.m. because of the Sept. 6 holiday.

Members present were Mayor Albert Roesse, Clerk Fern Bozman, and Councilmen Richard Wysiecki, Russell Toole, Ronald Kanipes, Raney Brady, and Marvin Webster.

Nonaligned Nations Turn To Economics

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Acknowledging that their political battle against colonialism is almost over, the nonaligned nations at their current summit conference in Colombo are giving most of their attention to their campaign on the economic front.

The battle cry is for a new international economic order.

"We are linked with an iniquitous global system of international economic relations which works against our vital interests," President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia told the opening session of the conference Monday.

The developing countries complain that what they get for the basic commodities and raw materials they sell never keeps up with the increasingly higher prices they must pay for manufactured goods from the industrialized countries.

They would like to match the success of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries. One idea is to develop producer associations controlling all important commodities turned out by the developing countries. A central Council of Producer Associations would bargain on behalf of individual national associations to push prices up.

Increasingly, the Third Worlders are also demanding a complete overhaul of the international monetary system to help bridge the gap between rich and poor nations. In her address opening the conference Monday, Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka suggested that the 85 nonaligned countries launch their own currency backed by their joint economic potential.

She contended that the industrialized nations shape the world financial system to suit their interests and through reserve currencies export their inflation to developing countries.

Mrs. Bandaranaike also proposed that the Third World assemble its own shipping fleet to carry its imports and exports; regulate freight rates, insurance and banking, and form a new commercial bank of Asia, Africa and Latin America.

Dynamite Found At Night Club

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eight sticks of dynamite, hooked to a timing device at a northside night club, were defused Monday by the Columbus bomb squad.

The dynamite was found by a vending machine company employee and employees of the Bistro night club.

A neighboring motel was partially evacuated while the squad spent about 90 minutes dismantling the device.

Deputies Investigate Accidents

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies investigated two injury accidents Monday afternoon.

The first accident occurred at the intersection of Call Road and Whiteside-Lister Mill Road at 12:20 p.m.

According to Deputy Jim Dixon's report, Elvin Jones, 50, Washington C. H., was southbound on Whiteside-Lister Mill Road and had stopped for a stop sign at the intersection of Call Road. He then proceeded into the intersection and was struck by a car driven by Darlene Green, 28, Williamsport.

Ms. Green received abrasions to her knees and a bump on the head. A passenger in the Green auto, Robert Green, 9, Williamsport, received contusions to his mouth. Both were referred to their family doctor for treatment.

No citations were issued.

At 5:10 p.m. yesterday Deputy Nick Franklin investigated an injury accident at the intersection of Long Street and State Route 752 in Ashville.

According to Franklin's report, Crystal L. Baum, 22, Laurelsville, was northbound on Long Street in Ashville, when she failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection of State Route 752. Her car entered the intersection and struck a car driven by Teresa Spillman, 17, Ashville.

Both women and a passenger in Ms. Spillman's auto, Aline Stout, 41, Ashville, received injuries. Crystal Baum received lacerations to her right hand and right shoulder. Teresa Spillman received a bump on the head. Ms. Stout received a bruised knee and a bump on the head. They were taken to Berger Hospital by the Harrison Twp. Emergency Squad.

Deputy Franklin cited Mrs. Baum for failure to yield the right of way.

Deaths

MR. HARRY R. HOSLER SR.

Mr. Harry Hosler Sr., 84, of 1185 Lone Pine Drive, died 9 p.m. Monday at his residence.

Born Jan. 9, 1892 in Circleville, he was the son of Raleigh and Ozilla Ross Hosler.

He was retired from Container Corporation of America and was a member of BPOE 77 for 54 years.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Creola Smallwood Hosler; three daughters, Mrs. Montford (Patty) Kirkwood, 110 Collins Court; Mrs. Ralph (Ruth) McClarren, Napoleon, Mich.; Mrs. Manley (Ozella) Carothers, 1026 Georgia Road; two sons, Harry Hosler Jr., Mt. Sterling; Willard H. Hosler, 245 Sunset Drive; one sister, Mrs. Robert Butler, Brandon, Fla.; 10 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held 2 p.m. Thursday at Mader Funeral Home with the Rev. Eugene Purdy officiating. Burial will be in Forest Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home beginning 1 p.m. Wednesday. Members of BPOE 77 will hold a memorial service 8 p.m. Wednesday in the funeral home.

Daniel Schorr Slates Speech

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Suspended CBS television correspondent Daniel Schorr will address the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union awards dinner on Oct. 1.

Schorr was suspended by CBS for his alleged participation in the publication of Central Intelligence Agency documents.

The ACLU also will present awards to four Ohioans for their work in "advancing civil liberties."

The recipients are Ysabel Rennie of Columbus, Richard Widman and Joshua Kancelbaum of Cleveland, and Alvina Littlefield of Toledo.

Commissioners Tour Community Building

COMMUNITY CENTER — Discussing the Pickaway Community Center at the old Children's Home farm on Route 22 east are, from the left, Dick T. Tootle, Donald Strous, Vera Saunders and L. Robert Liston. A cement block structure at the farm that was formerly a garage has been remodeled at a cost of about $9,500 and will be used for a senior citizens nutrition program and also serve as temporary headquarters for senior citizens center.

Pickaway County Commissioners Monday toured the community building located at the Children's Home property on Route 22 east.

The building which is being remodeled for a community center was formerly a cement block garage.

It will be used initially for the site for the Senior Citizen Nutrition program and also as a temporary location for the senior citizen center.

Using federal revenue sharing funds and CETA workers paid with federal funds almost exclusively, commissioners have remodeled the building for about $9,500, including air conditioning and heating.

Commissioners hope to have the building available for other community meetings.

Monday afternoon commissioners appropriated $300 for a mosquito control program to be implemented by Bob Kramer, city-county sanitarian.

Kramer has purchased larvicide and a three gallon stainless steel pump sprayer. CETA employees will be used by the county to spray mosquito breeding areas in the county.

Commissioners filed an objection to an application for a carryout liquor license with the Ohio Department of Liquor Control. David E. Gochenour of Mt. Sterling is seeking the application for a proposed business establishment in Salt Creek Twp. on Route 56.

A representative of Farber Corporation met with commissioners and courthouse boiler engineer Polly Leist to discuss the heating plant. Commissioners requested a firm bid for replacing a vacuum pump with a condensate pump and for repair or replacement of the igniter of the furnace.

Foster Homes Badly Needed

The Fairfield County Foster Home Program is actively recruiting for foster and shelter homes.

Many youths in our community between the ages of 12 to 17, are in need of homes. The need a stable family that can give them love, understanding and guidance.

Foster parents are paid for the care of the child. The natural parents remain financially responsible for medical and dental care.

The Fairfield County Foster Home Program is designed to assist foster and shelter parents in understanding their duties and responsibilities.

If you have an extra bed in your home - and care - WON'T YOU SHARE?

For more information contact the Foster Home Program at 654-3838, 9 to 4, Monday through Friday.

Break-In Investigated

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Department received a report of breaking and entering and grand theft at the Darby Twp. School over the weekend.

According to the report, the thieves gained entry to a storage shed on the school property by breaking the lock on an overhead garage door. Once inside, the thieves took a riding mower, pushed it around the building, and loaded it into a vehicle that was parked on London Road.

Value of the John Deere riding mower was set at $1,200.

A Page Of Opinion

No Longer Immune

When public officials are riding high in public esteem, they can do little wrong. But when they begin dropping a peg or two in public favor, the drop can become precipitous.

Congress, the polls indicate, is not held in especially high esteem by the public just now—a fact some members seem eager to perpetuate with what might generously be called their erratic personal conduct. Whether fallen esteem had anything to do with it or not, the Washington police department has been advised by its general counsel that members of Congress henceforth should be treated exactly as other citizens.

That was not always the case in the past. Personal hijinks by members of the House and Senate more often received a wink than a summons. If the police counsel's advice sticks, it may not require another tidal basin incident to bring on the cops.

What would such a policy do to "congressional immunity"? What the U.S. Constitution says about it is this: "The Senators and Representatives . . . shall in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same . . ."

But in 1908, the U.S. Supreme Court said, "the terms 'treason, felony and breach of the peace' . . . embrace all criminal cases and proceedings whatsoever."

If that ruling holds, it means members of Congress are immune from arrest only so long as they break no laws—the same consideration given to their constituents.

Community Of Tomorrow

By PHYLLIS BATTLE
LAKE BUENA VISTA, FLA. — During the last years of his life, Walt Disney evolved a dream which transcended all of his films, his TV shows, his "Magic Kingdom" theme parks, even Mickey Mouse himself . . .

Walt wanted to create a showcase "city of the future" — an ever-evolving and changing community "where people actually live a life they can't find anywhere else in the world today." Designed by his own artists to be structurally and environmentally beautiful, it also would introduce all the newest ideas and technology of American industry.

"Believe me, this is the most exciting and challenging idea we've ever tackled," Walt told his staff before his death December 15, 1966. "It's the heart of everything we've been doing."

Now, later this year on 100 acres here in Florida, Disney's corporate descendants will break ground to begin the building of the master's dream.

Called EPCOT (for Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow), the target opening date is late 1979. The enormous project will include a futuristic international exposition site, called "World Showcase," where the nations of the world will come together to present their culture, history, tourism and trade ideas in a wildly imaginative world's fair concept; and an "International Village," where representatives of the participating countries will live together in the exciting city-of-the-future that Disney envisioned.

"This will be unlike other 'new towns' in America," according to Disney spokesman Charles Ridgway. "In the first place, in our organization it is the artists and dreamers who do the planning — they visualize how an environment should look, make sure it is pleasing to the eye, ear and touch — and then they go to the engineers and architects and say 'Okay, you make this plan stand up.' Other cities are laid out by architects and engineers, who traditionally are more concerned with materials and utilization of space than with pure sensory delights."

"And Walt's concept, which of course we'll follow, was that the young people who move into the new city from other nations will stay for only one year, then go back to their own countries, hopefully to spread the ideas they've learned from this new environment. This way, with no permanent residents, we can avoid the stagnation that sets in when people move into a 'new town' and begin asking for the same kinds of old services and ways of life they've had before."

With rotating residents, Disney's "community of tomorrow" will be a city that is "never completed, but rather always introducing, testing and demonstrating new materials and systems."

EPCOT will be set apart from "Walt Disney World," with its Magic Kingdom theme park, resort hotels and golf courses — but will be connected to them by monorail and other transport systems.

The World Showcase's two semi-circular buildings will attract masses of the 13 million tourists who annually visit the resort complex, because visits to the pavilions will be like brief trips to the different countries which will participate in this exotic permanent world's fair. There will be Disney-designed rides and attractions, cafes, shops and displays, set against the scenic landscaping typical of the Florida resort.

Though plans are not finalized, Disney "Imagineers" are working on such prospective EPCOT drawing cards as: a magic carpet ride through the wonders of the Arab world — "ascend into the night skies of Arabia, guided by a genie who appears and disappears in the darkness"; a Japanese pavilion that features Kabuki dinner-theatre around a placid pond; a Rhine River boat ride past the cities of Germany; a moving sidewalk cafe that revolves you past the landmarks of Paris in France.

But there is far more than frivolity involved with EPCOT. The heart of the show will be a Future World Theme Center, where some 30 nations may communicate to the public their contributions in the areas of Science and Technology, Community Ideas, Communications and the Arts. Here, in three huge pavilions, leaders in these fields from around the world can meet to exchange ideas and seek solutions affecting "the quality of life" of everyone on earth.

The Future World Theme Center will be surrounded by a series of "satellites," each specializing in a different field — such as energy, agriculture, health and medicine, communications. At each satellite, men and women of various lands will work together on new technology related to the "theme" of that area.

EPCOT is the most ambitious — as Walt said, "challenging" — project yet for the Disney organization. But no one here doubts it will be constructed on schedule, and will succeed. I was invited to visit this area when the ground was broken for Walt Disney World; there were skeptics then, who couldn't imagine that any such mammoth effort could be completed by the opening date of October, 1971. But it was, and, in the first year alone, attracted 60 per cent more business than was anticipated.

Since then, planners have scurried to add new rides and attractions, hotel space, golf courses and a huge lake-side shopping pavilion to accommodate the growing hordes of visitors. Last year, the dizzying Space Mountain ride was introduced; two months ago, "River Country" — a water creation complex of waterfalls, slides and cascading rapids, was introduced; next project will be the enlargement of the Polynesian Village Resort Hotel by 100 rooms; and concurrent with the construction of EPCOT will probably be the building of a new Asian Resort Hotel to provide more rooms for the increased traffic the World Theme Center will attract, since the other WDW hotels are booked 95 per cent of capacity year round.

Disney acquired 27,400 acres here in Florida in the 1960s, because he wanted room to establish here a world center, not only for entertainment and relaxation, but for international exchanges of ideas, technology and even, quite possibly, world trade.

It was Walt's dream. And in the language of Cinderella — abetted by that old Disney "magic" — anything your heart desires will come to you . . .

Beef Import Curbs Slated By USDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has started proceedings aimed at curbing a flow of beef imports that, officials say, is coming into the U.S. market through Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, in violation of trade agreements with Australia and other supplying countries.

If adopted, the new rule will redefine the meat — mainly beef used for hamburger and other products — as subject to quota restrictions. Such shipments beginning today will be charged against an individual country's 1976 allocation, the department said.

So far this year, through July 31, about 21.3 million pounds of foreign beef have been channeled through Mayaguez. The meat is altered physically by grinding, shredding or flaking then repackaged so that it qualifies for U.S. customs entry without being subject of quota regulations. Officials said another 36 million pounds reportedly are in the Mayaguez pipeline or have been contracted for delivery in addition to the 21.3 million delivered through July 31.

Under a 1964 meat quota law, imports of fresh, frozen and chilled beef, veal, mutton and goat meat are subject to annual quotas based on U.S. production. Recently, however, so-called voluntary restraint agreements have been used with foreign countries to keep imports below a maximum quota trigger level. This year's agreements call for imports totaling 1,223 million pounds, about 10 million less than the quota trigger maximum.

Largest Turtle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's largest turtle, whose fossils were discovered in Venezuela in 1972, had shells of over seven feet when they roamed the earth — about five or six million years ago.

Paleontologist Roger C. Wood named his discovery Stupendemys geographicus and said they may have measured 11 feet from nose to tail and weighed three tons. The 34-year-old staff member of Stockton State College in Pomona, N.J. believes they may have been marine turtles, but noted they had leg and neck bones that were completely unique.

Wood's two specimens measure 7 feet 2 inches and 7 feet 6 inches. The larger shell was found in fragments, while the smaller one was almost completely intact. It is now on display at the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard University.

Ohio, with its diverse population origins in its early days, presented the greatest variety in architecture. As early as 1803 Marietta could boast of one home "architecturally pretentious enough to be labeled Georgian." A fine example of the early Republican or Federal architecture was the Taft House built in Cincinnati about 1820.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

One of our daughters constantly scrubs her hands and arms with soap and antiseptic and then applies antiseptic lotions. She is 16 and has an unusual fear of germs. She has been doing this for two years.

Mrs. J. E. R., Fla.

Dear Mrs. R.:
Cleanliness is an admirable quality, but when it begins to dominate one's life, important psychological values must be considered.

I know a young lady who began such a pattern from the time she began to menstruate. This was established only after intensive psychotherapy brought to light her unnatural feelings about menstruation.

Under hypnosis, it was established that her aunt had planted the idea that menstruation was ugly and dirty. It is difficult to believe that in this enlightened age such ignorance still exists.

I also recall an international union leader whose life revolved around his fear of bacteria on the skin. He would not shake hands with people. He would not turn a faucet or touch a door knob without the protection of a clean towel.

It is obvious that cleanliness was not the basis for his fear. Thousands of cases are on record of people who manipulate their lives to live with such unrealistic fears.

These thoughts must lead you to the realization that some form of psychotherapy must be begun as soon as possible in order to find the underlying reasons for your daughter's attempt to "wipe herself clean" of bugs, of germs, possibly of guilt, and emotional conflict.

The sooner you do this, the greater are her chances for being liberated from her problems and for finding inner peace.

Is it possible to explain what is done when a child's eyes are corrected by surgery for cross-eyes?

Mrs. E. I., N.J.

Dear Mrs. I.:
There are six muscles attached to the eyeball which control each movement of the eye. Occasionally, one of these muscles may be weaker and another stronger than normal. The result is that the eyeball is "not in balance" and looks off to one side.

Before surgery is considered for this condition, known as "strabismus," the eye surgeon has laid out a detailed plan of action for the amount and degree of muscle changing required in each case.

The weakened muscle may be shortened and thus give it more strength. The over-strong muscle may be weakened by another surgical variation.

The operation is usually successful. It is not a dangerous one. There are no external scars. Only in rare cases is it necessary to repeat the operation for minor adjustments.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold bugs, who two years ago were convinced that the price of gold and the size of their fortunes might soar to the heavens, have been crawling of late.

Being an economic rather than zoological creature, the gold bug draws its nourishment from the price of gold, which it believes is the essential repository of value, a safe haven in any economic storm, especially those of inflation.

In December 1974, with inflation and recession pummeling economics of the industrial world, many gold bugs were more confident than ever. Gold sold for $195.20 an ounce, more than five times its 1970 price.

It wasn't uncommon in 1974 to hear the gold bugs speak about an even more lustrous future, not at $200 an ounce but at $300 and even more. Paper money was more suspect every day; gold was solid.

Gold sold for $113.30 in New York Friday, and some analysts familiar with the market were forecasting even lower prices, perhaps much lower.

While some of the gold bugs picked up their ounces at $40 or so several years ago, a good many of them paid several times that figure and now have either no gains or substantial losses.

In addition to the quoted price, many buyers also paid an agent's fee, an assay fee and perhaps a storage fee. And they received no interest in return.

Problems for the gold bugs began soon after, or even slightly before, U.S. citizens were permitted to buy bullion at the beginning of 1975. The entrance of U.S. citizens into the market was expected to be bullish. It wasn't.

At the time inflation was raging throughout the world, and that of course was considered a boost for gold prices. Whereas paper money, losing its value, sometimes is refused, gold seldom is.

The observations of the gold bugs were correct but their forecasts of even worse inflation weren't. Gradually inflation began to lose momentum and, while stability is still a distance off, people regained some confidence.

The lessened role of gold as backing for currencies contributed further to the decline. The relative value of international currencies, rather than being pegged to gold, were permitted to float against each other.

Central bank members of the International Monetary Fund agreed

not to increase their total gold holdings. And the fund began a four-year program to auction off some of its holdings.

All this, combined with sales by the Soviets and the continued output of that country and South Africa, has led to a situation where a relatively large supply exists, and that is bad for prices.

But not all gold bugs are convinced they have to crawl; they still feel their metal is special, and that it will yet prove its higher value.

Noting the difficulty that some European nations are having in controlling inflation, some gold bugs already are grooming their wings for the takeoff.

Ford Shuns Elizabeth Ray

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Elizabeth Ray was just tracking her man like any good reporter, but she got too close to President Ford to suit one of his aides.

Miss Ray, of Washington's sex-payroll scandal fame, is covering the Republican National Convention for Genesis Magazine, a publication geared primarily for men.

Monday night she followed Ford as he climbed a stairway to the mezzanine of the Radisson Muehlebach Hotel to attend a cocktail party given by Republican Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona.

The President apparently was unaware that Miss Ray, wearing a blue tee-shirt, was close on his heels. But a Ford aide spotted her and insisted that she retire behind a rope barrier that restrained cheering onlookers.

It was Miss Ray's statement that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, put her on the congressional payroll primarily to serve as a personal companion that triggered a series of payroll-sex allegations. Hays, who announced this week that he would not seek reelection, acknowledged a relationship with Miss Ray but denied doing anything improper.

James Kilbourne brought 100 settlers from Connecticut in 1803 to begin the town of Worthington, then 10 miles up the Olentangy River from Columbus.

A Page Of Opinion

No Longer Immune

When public officials are riding high in public esteem, they can do little wrong. But when they begin dropping a peg or two in public favor, the drop can become precipitous.

Congress, the polls indicate, is not held in especially high esteem by the public just now—a fact some members seem eager to perpetuate with what might generously be called their erratic personal conduct. Whether fallen esteem had anything to do with it or not, the Washington police department has been advised by its general counsel that members of Congress henceforth should be treated exactly as other citizens.

That was not always the case in the past. Personal hijinks by members of the House and Senate more often received a wink than a summons. If the police counsel's advice sticks, it may not require another tidal basin incident to bring on the cops.

What would such a policy do to "congressional immunity"? What the U.S. Constitution says about it is this: "The Senators and Representatives . . . shall in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same . . ."

But in 1908, the U.S. Supreme Court said, "the terms 'treason, felony and breach of the peace' embrace all criminal cases and proceedings whatsoever."

If that ruling holds, it means members of Congress are immune from arrest only so long as they break no laws—the same consideration given to their constituents.

Community Of Tomorrow

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

LAKE BUENA VISTA, FLA. — During the last years of his life, Walt Disney evolved a dream which transcended all of his films, his TV shows, his "Magic Kingdom" theme parks, even Mickey Mouse himself . . .

Walt wanted to create a showcase "city of the future"—an ever-evolving and changing community "where people actually live a life they can't find anywhere else in the world today." Designed by his own artists to be structurally and environmentally beautiful, it also would introduce all the newest ideas and technology of American industry.

Is it possible to explain what is done when a child's eyes are corrected by surgery for cross-eyes?

Mrs. E. I., N.J.

Dear Mrs. I.:

There are six muscles attached to the eyeball which control each movement of the eye. Occasionally, one of these muscles may be weaker and another stronger than normal. The result is that the eyeball is "not in balance" and looks off to one side.

Before surgery is considered for this condition, known as "strabismus," the eye surgeon has laid out a detailed plan of action for the amount and degree of muscle changing required in each case.

The weakened muscle may be shortened and thus give it more strength. The over-strong muscle may be weakened by another surgical variation.

The operation is usually successful. It is not a dangerous one. There are no external scars. Only in rare cases it is necessary to repeat the operation for minor adjustments.

Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Gold bugs, who two years ago were convinced that the price of gold and the size of their fortunes might soar to the heavens, have been crawling of late.

Being an economic creature rather than zoological creature, the gold bug draws its nourishment from the price of gold, which it believes is the essential repository of value, a safe haven in any economic storm, especially those of inflation.

In December 1974, with inflation and recession pummeling economics of the industrial world, many gold bugs were more confident than ever. Gold sold for $195.20 an ounce, more than five times its 1970 price.

It wasn't uncommon in 1974 to hear the gold bugs speak about an even more lustrous future, not at $200 an ounce but at $300 and even more. Paper money was more suspect every day; gold was solid.

Gold sold for $113.30 in New York Friday, and some analysts familiar with the market were forecasting even lower prices, perhaps much lower.

While some of the gold bugs picked up their ounces at $40 or so several years ago, a good many of them paid several times that figure and now have either no gains or substantial losses.

In addition to the quoted price, many buyers also paid an agent's fee, an assay fee and perhaps a storage fee. And they received no interest in return.

Problems for the gold bugs began soon after, or even slightly before, U.S. citizens were permitted to buy bullion at the beginning of 1975. The entrance of U.S. citizens into the market was expected to be bullish. It wasn't.

At the time inflation was raging throughout the world, and that of course was considered a boost for gold prices. Whereas paper money, losing its value, sometimes is refused, gold seldom is.

The observations of the gold bugs were correct but their forecasts of even worse inflation weren't. Gradually inflation began to lose momentum and, while stability is still a distance off, people regained some confidence.

The lessened role of gold as backing for currencies contributed further to the decline. The relative value of international currencies, rather than being pegged to gold, were permitted to float against each other.

Central bank members of the International Monetary Fund agreed

not to increase their total gold holdings. And the fund began a four-year program to auction off some of its holdings.

All this, combined with sales by the Soviets and the continued output of that country and South Africa, has led to a situation where a relatively large supply exists, and that is bad for prices.

But not all gold bugs are convinced they have to crawl; they still feel their metal is special, and that it will yet prove its higher value.

Noting the difficulty that some European nations are having in controlling inflation, some gold bugs already are grooming their wings for the takeoff.

Ford Shuns Elizabeth Ray

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Elizabeth Ray was just tracking her man like any good reporter, but she got too close to President Ford to suit one of his aides.

Miss Ray, of Washington's sex-payroll scandal fame, is covering the Republican National Convention for Genesis Magazine, a publication geared primarily for men.

Monday night she followed Ford as he climbed a stairway to the mezzanine of the Radisson Muehlebach Hotel to attend a cocktail party given by Republican Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona.

The President apparently was unaware that Miss Ray, wearing a blue tee-shirt, was close on his heels. But a Ford aide spotted her and insisted that she retire behind a rope barrier that restrained cheering onlookers.

It was Miss Ray's statement that Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, put her on the congressional payroll primarily to serve as a personal companion that triggered a series of payroll-sex allegations. Hays, who announced this week that he would not seek reelection, acknowledged a relationship with Miss Ray but denied doing anything improper.

James Kilbourne brought 100 settlers from Connecticut in 1803 to begin the town of Worthington, then 10 miles up the Olentangy River from Columbus.

Mine Center Dedicated

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP) — A sprawling $20.6 million National Mine Health and Safety Academy was formally dedicated today, even though classes in mine inspection have already begun.

Forty men who will work for the MESA Metal and Nonmetal Division are taking a 16-week course and 175 coal mine inspectors are undergoing an annual two-week refresher course in electricity.

Interior Secretary Thomas S. Keppe, Administrator Robert Barrett of the Mine Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA), and Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., were scheduled to speak at the 2 p.m. dedication today.

While the last of the construction crews have been putting the final touches on the academy, the new students have been adjusting to the life of classes and homework.

The academy's full ninemonth course includes basic writing skills, notice and order writing, accident investigation and prevention, and even defensive driving.

Mine inspector candidates must have five years of mining experience. "I got lost five times today," complained one student as he made his way through the fancy academy's maze of halls.

POMONA GRANGE

During the Summer Session of Pomona Grange 26 held Aug. 13, the following officers were elected to serve until August 1978:

Frank Lands, master; Hoyt Timmons, overseer; Paul Dunkle, lecturer; Mark Pfeifer, steward; Neil Wolfe, assistant steward; Barbara McKenzie, lady assistant steward; Nellie Bolender, chaplain; Beatrice Bumgarner, secretary; Harold Furniss, treasurer; David Bolender, gatekeeper; Brenda Bolender, Pomona; Barbara Crites, Ceres; Joan Dawson, Flora; and S. J. Beers and Harold Bumgarner, executive committee. During the fall session these officers will be installed by the County Grange Youth.

Paul Dunkle served as piano accompanist. The roll call response during progress and procedure reports revealed that Saltcreek Valley and Washington Granges tied for first place in attendance.

For Pickaway County Ohio State Grange Deputy responsibilities, Mary K. Lands presented exhibit premiums as follows: 1. Saltcreek; 2. Star, 3. Mt. Pleasant, 4. Washington, 5. Scioto. She expressed appreciation for cooperation during Heritage Days, and gave highlights of the recent visit to Geauga County Granges and Friendly Hills Camp.

Resolutions of respect were prepared and presented by appointed committees for members deceased since the Spring Pomona: Paul Kuhlwein, Edgar DeLong, Blanche Kerns, and C. E. Dick.

The master, Frank Lands, extended a thank you to all who assisted during the recent County Fair. As Pickaway County Grange Youth chairman, Barbara McKenzie told of the many and varied participations and announced that there would be an exhibit booth at State Fair. For Pomona Day at Grange Food Service during Fair Week, the chairman, John Dowler gave a success report. A contribution was voted for Columbus Psychiatric Hospital to help toward State Fair enjoyment by residents.

"Observations and Evaluations—Visual and Mental" was the theme of the program supervised by Leora Sayre. Each one present participated in varied fashion.

Directed by Women's Activity Chairmen Annabell Spangler and Louella Bolender, the members of Washington Grange served refreshments during the concluding social hour.

Water Survey Completed

The Pickaway County Board of Health has recently completed a survey of the water supplies of the mobile home parks in Pickaway County.

Hugh Barnhill, Chief Environmentalist for the department, reported 23 supplies were sampled and inspected by the department. Assisting in the survey was John Childers of the OEPA. The Ohio Department of Health Laboratories performed the necessary testing of the samples collected.

Barnhill organized and directed the survey, making inspections of the construction of each water supply. Any deficiencies found which would endanger the quality of the water for human consumption were reported to the owner and corrections made.

Fortunately no toxic or hazardous substances were found in any of the supplies which exceeded U.S. Public Health Standards. Several were found to be naturally fluoridated.

Excessive amounts of iron was the most common problem, and while this does not constitute any public health problem, it does result in the staining of fixtures and clothing and may impart a bitter or astringent taste to the water.

A program was established to provide for a bacteriological sampling of all trailer parks on a regular basis to insure the safety of the drinking water.

Also any individual may have their water tested just by calling the Board of Health. Please do not bring samples to the Board of Health as special containers must be used to collect them.

Directed by Women's Activity Chairmen Annabell Spangler and Louella Bolender, the members of Washington Grange served refreshments during the concluding social hour.

Mine Center Dedicated

BECKLEY, W.Va. (AP) — A sprawling $20.6 million National Mine Health and Safety Academy was formally dedicated today, even though classes in mine inspection have already begun.

Forty men who will work for the MESA Metal and Nonmetal Division are taking a 16-week course and 175 coal mine inspectors are undergoing an annual two-week refresher course in electricity.

Interior Secretary Thomas S. Keppe, Administrator Robert Barrett of the Mine Enforcement and Safety Administration (MESA), and Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., were scheduled to speak at the 2 p.m. dedication today.

While the last of the construction crews have been putting the final touches on the academy, the new students have been adjusting to the life of classes and homework.

The academy's full ninthmonth course includes basic writing skills, notice and order writing, accident investigation and prevention, and even defensive driving.

Mine inspector candidates must have five years of mining experience. "I got lost five times today," complained one student as he made his way through the fancy academy's maze of halls.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Child Deserves More Than Child Mother

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old stepdaughter became pregnant five months ago. (She was actually only 13 then). She is very immature, but insists that she wants to keep her baby. My wife and I managed to get her into a good "home" close to where we live, and she seems to be maturing some, not nearly enough to raise a child.

Her 16-year-old boyfriend has completely dropped out of the picture. We've considered keeping the baby and adopting it, but we have five other children, my wife isn't well and I can't see our taking on this added responsibility.

I have a medium income, but money isn't the biggest problem. We're more concerned about the future of our daughter and her unborn child. It seems unfair for the child to be raised by an unwed mother who isn't even through the eighth grade.

Please tell us what you would do. HEAVY-HEARTED DAD DEAR DAD: I would choose the alternative that would be best for the baby. Every child deserves to be wanted instead of accidentally conceived and raised by a mother who herself is still a child.

For you to adopt a baby you don't really want would be unfair to you and the child. Your daughter needs to grow up before assuming the responsibilities of motherhood.

Thousands of couples are waiting to give that baby every advantage in life. I vote for adoption.

DEAR ABBY: I'm tired of the ignorance of those who insist that the word "man" applies only to males. My dictionary has several definitions of which the first two are:

MAN: (1) A human being; person, whether male or female. (2) The human race; mankind.

So why don't we stop all this asinine changing of words, such as "mankind" to "personkind," and "chairman" to "chairperson?"

And what about the word "woman?" It has "man" in it, too.

FRANK M. IN BEVERLY HILLS DEAR FRANK: I'm willing. I think the most asinine of all is calling a manhole a "personhole."

DEAR ABBY: Concerning FOREVER SORRY, whose mother never let her forget that she (the daughter) "disgraced" the family because she had been a pregnant bride: Although fortunately I was never in that situation, I, too, was the victim of such "holier than thou" preachings.

However, in tracing our family history, I discovered that my extremely pious grandmother gave birth to her first child six months after her marriage!

This was documented by her marriage certificate and the child's birth certificate. The problem was neatly solved by changing the "birthday" of the child to a more "proper" date.

Fur Coat Prices To Join Spiral

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Inflation, recession and the growing popularity of synthetic look-alikes have failed to ruffle the fur industry. But consumers planning on fur coats this winter had better be prepared for high prices.

Sales of fur coats, jackets, stoles, etc. totaled $525 million last year, according to the Fur Information and Fashion Council, a trade association. That's an increase of 88 per cent over the $279 million worth of furs sold in 1970.

Prices, meanwhile, have risen steadily, and this year's increase is the biggest yet.

The average price for a good quality, full-length mink coat is now around $6,500, up $2,000 or 44 per cent from five years ago, according to a council spokesman. A raccoon coat goes for about $2,500, double the 1970 figure. A rabbit coat that used to sell for $150 to $200 now costs $200 to $300. At the top of the price scale, a Russian sable available for $15,000 to $20,000 in 1970 is up to $25,000 to $30,000 today.

(The Consumer Price Index increased 43 per cent from 1970 to 1975.)

The fur council spokesman said that prices increased about 5 1/2 to 7 per cent a year until 1976. "This year was the big jump," he said.

Part of the reason is increased demand. Part is that the industry relies heavily on work done by hand — there is almost $1,000 worth of labor in that $6,500 mink coat — and wages are rising.

The biggest cause of this year's increase, however, is competition from foreign buyers at fur auctions. "European traders have bid us up," the council spokesman said. He said economic troubles and fluctuating currencies abroad led people to invest in fur pelts, much as they invest in precious stones, metals and works of art as a hedge against inflation.

Most people look on the purchase of a fur coat as a major investment, and the investment can be a risky one if you wind up with poor quality. Remembering certain basic rules cuts the risk.

The federal Fur Products Labeling Act of 1952 set standards for labeling any fur costing more than $5. Among the things to look for:

—The animal's true English name. No other name may be given on the label. That means you won't see terms such as "mink-dyed muskrat."

—The country the fur comes from if it is imported.

—If the fur has been processed in any way — dyed, bleached, etc. — the label must say so. It also must say whether paws, tails, bellies, etc. have been used instead of whole pelts for all or part of the garment. Used furs must be identified as second-hand.

The fur council suggests that buyers check furs to make sure that each pelt has a uniform color, is fairly dense and has a silky texture and bright luster. Short-haired furs usually are sturdier and will last longer than long-haired furs.

Friendly Visitors Meet At Center

The Friendly Visitors of Pickaway Senior Center held its monthly meeting recently at the Senior Center. Della Wertman gave a reading entitled "My Influence" and dedicated it to Wanda Hamilton. Mary Bales read "The Greatest Thing," and Manva Ross read the poem "Praise The Lord Anyway."

The thank you and appreciation letter received from Ruby Gillian to Wanda Hamilton was shared with the group. Also displayed were cards sent to other members.

There were 27 birthday cards and 19 get well cards signed to be sent during the month. These will be sent to shut-ins and nursing home residents. There were 213 visits reported by the group for the past month along with visiting to nursing homes.

A surprise was a visit from 92 year-old Laura B. Lutz. She drove her own car to the center from Kingston.

Mary Roberts, Mary Bales and Maneva Ross volunteered to help organize the birthday lists.

The next meeting will be 1:30 p.m., Sept. 14, at the Senior Center. Minnie Strawser and Mary Roberts will be in charge of refreshments.

Second National Bank Plans Name Change

The Second National Bank of Circleville announced today that it will begin in October to use the new statewide identity program coordinated with the 41 banks affiliated with BancOhio Corporation.

The Second National Bank joins 20 other BancOhio banks who are simultaneously introducing their new names to local Ohioans.

Earl W. Palm, President and chief executive officer, said that The Second National Bank of Circleville, an affiliate of BancOhio, will soon become BancOhio-Second National Bank.

"According to the new identity program, the symbol, the corporate names and the bank name will be used on signs, in advertising, as well as on booklets, forms and checks. The BancOhio name and symbol will be accompanied by Second National Bank in a consistent type style. This will result in a BancOhio "look" for BancOhio-Second National Bank, further, reinforcing the common identity," Palm said.

The new identity includes a new symbol, with a stylized coin plus the addition of "BancOhio" to precede the local bank name.

"Most important of all," Palm said, "is the fact that we will continue to provide the same individual, friendly service that our customers have come to expect."

Palm said customers of the bank will not be affected by the change of identity and may continue to use their checks, passbooks and other bank material. There will be no changes in policy.

"One of the immediate benefits to our customers will be the ease in identifying and transferring banking business upon moving within Ohio, and 20 per cent of Americans move each year," Palm said. "With 215 banking offices in the state there is a BancOhio bank nearby to provide continued, outstanding service, as always. But now with common names and symbol, we'll be easy to find."

The name of each individual bank will continue to be used in a prominent manner. "We want to emphasize," Palm said, "that our bank is a local, individually chartered bank, with our own president and board of directors who make decisions right in town. Shares of stock in BancOhio are widely held by people in the communities in which we operate. We want our identity to tell our hometown Ohioans that what we're doing is combining local responsiveness with statewide strength."

BancOhio-Second National Bank currently has more than $25 million in assets. BancOhio Corporation, with assets of $3.5 billion and 215 offices throughout Ohio, is among the 50 largest banking organizations and the 15 largest organizations in number of offices in the country.

Local Pullers Entered In World Event

Richard McPherson, Linden Gibson and Wheeler Rittinger, all of Circleville, are among the pullers entered in the 20th World Tractor Pull at Farmfest 76, Lake Crystal, Minn.

The World Pull will be held Sept. 13-16. Eight classes, four each of super stock and modified, are scheduled on twin tracks.

McPherson has entered the 5,000 and 7,000 modified classes with his 454 supercharged Chevy. Gibson has entered the 5,000 modified class with his Cockshutt 40 powered by a 427 Ford. Rittinger has entered the 5,000 modified class with his International 560 powered by a 454 Chevy engine.

Entries have been received from 23 states and Canada.

Located on a four-lane highway about 90 minutes from Minneapolis, Farmfest 76 also features the World Horse Pulling and National Horse Plowing Contests, daily horseshoe competition and a 55-acre outdoor "living history" ag museum, with Indian farming village, 1900s pioneer farmstead, main street crafts area, 40-horse hitch, and the world's largest display of working antique farm equipment. There will also be extensive women's programs, a thousand acres of field demonstrations, ag education "Hall of Progress," and a record breaking 121-acre commercial exhibit area.

Stage entertainers for the week include Roy Clark, Glen Campbell, Boots Randolph, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass, Rosemary Clooney, the Statler Bros., Loretta Lynn, Mel Tillis, Paul Lennon, Helen Reddy, Bobby Vinton, John Davidson, Lynn Anderson, and Jim Nabors.

Pickaway Twp. Students To Register Now

New students in the Pickaway Township Elementary School area may register at the school office from 9 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday until Aug. 30.

Public Hearing Held On Nutrition Program

A public hearing on Nutrition Program Title VII funding was held at the First Congregational Church in Columbus.

Conducting the hearing was Jerry Borin, program planner of the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging, and Jean Jones, director of Nutrition Title VII program of the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging.

The ladies attending from Circleville were Jenny Hoffman, Polly Thomas, Dorothy Smith, Eunice Shy and Vera Saunders, program coordinator of the Pickaway Senior Center.

At the hearing, the greatest need reported was for transportation. Those attending the hearing expressed gratitude for the meals at the nutrition sites.

There were only six councils who did not have the nutrition program. Madison, Delaware and Pickaway are the last three to receive the program in the state. All 88 counties in Ohio will have at least one site. Central Ohio counties and the number of sites are: Union, three sites; Licking, three sites; Franklin, 12 sites; Fairfield two sites; Fayette, one site.

As of October there will be two sites in Delaware, one in Madison and one in Pickaway. If needed, additional sites can be planned.

Nutrition Program Title VII is federally funded under the Older American Act. In Central Ohio it is funded through the Ohio Commission on Aging. Locally the program will be under the jurisdiction and funded through the Ohio Area Agency on Aging. Pickaway County Com-

Circleville Manor Offers Residents Many Extras

THIS is the whirlpool facility at The Circleville Manor. The whirlpool features a strap-in seat and places the person in the whirlpool by a hydraulic lift, thus insuring a great deal of safety. Residents can use the whirlpool for bathing or for simply relaxing

The residents of Circleville Manor can enjoy many of the comforts of home, and even a few comforts the average home doesn't have. Among the more outstanding of these are the facility's kitchen and dining room, the whirlpool bath, and the beauty shop.

The kitchen area is one of the most modern and up-to-date that can be found in the area. The staff of Eunice Boysel, Dixie Whitt, Susie Pritchard, and Ruth McCafferty prepare around 350 meals a day. The menu includes such tasty items as roast beef, au gratin potatoes, chicken, and fresh fruits and vegetables. Circleville Manor participates in the Franciscan's Meals on Wheels program also, sending out six meals to different shut-ins everyday.

The residents of the manor come to the dining room and are seated, then volunteers and staff members serve the food to the residents. After they are finished and have left, the volunteers and staff members take all dirty dishes and utensils directly to the dish-washing room where they are cleaned according to state cafeteria law specifications. "No one except our cooks and a few cafeteria staff members are permitted in the kitchen," said Circleville Manor Director Charles Nelson, "our whole food operation is of course required to be as clean and sanitary as possible, and we're very proud of it." Meals are taken to residents who are unable to come to the cafeteria, and if a resident has a particular need in his diet or food preparation, the food staff handles that too, in cooperation with the resident's doctor and the dietician consultant for Circleville Manor. That lady is Diane Schlegel, who works out of Children's Hospital in Columbus.

Residents may also relax and bathe in the big whirlpool bath at Circleville Manor. There is no worry of slips or falls involving the whirlpool, because the person using the whirlpool is placed in a chair with a safety strap fastened across them. The chair is then lifted off the floor hydraulically and swung over the whirlpool bath, and the user is gently lowered into the churning water.

THESE four ladies comprise the kitchen staff at the Circleville Manor. The four, from left, Eunice Boysel, Dixie Whitt, Susie Pritchard, and Supervisor Ruth McCafferty prepare around 350 meals a day. The dining area seats about 35 people, and meals are taken to residents who are unable to make it to the dining room. Special dietary needs are taken care of, and menus regularly include such items as roast beef, chicken, and fresh fruits and vegetables.

Utility Rate Plan Begging For Support

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Cuyahoga County lawmaker is attempting to rally 11th hour support for a bill to deal with utility rate cases still to be settled under a lame duck law he helped repeal.

Gov. James A. Rhodes signed into law last June a bill abolishing the 64-year-old Reconstruction Cost New (RCN) formula and enacting an original cost system for evaluating utility property.

The new formula takes effect Sept. 1 and is retroactive to Jan. 1 in application to rate cases.

However, requests filed with the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) prior to that date are still being based on RCN. Therein lies the problem for Sen. J. Timothy McCormack, D-31 Euclid, who sponsored the RCN repealer.

McCormack had been willing to accept the fact that some $892 million worth of rate cases would be determined by RCN. But that was before a recent Ohio Supreme Court decision involving a request by General Telephone Co.

That ruling said PUCO could no longer make an inflationary discount on the rate of return a utility is allowed on equity or stock. After the decision, PUCO raised Ohio Bell Telephone's recommended rate of return from 6.45 per cent to 8.03 per cent, McCormack said. And just last week, Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. won an 8.58 per cent rate of return, the highest ever granted by the commission.

PUCO Commissioner David Sweet, who voted against the C&SOE rate, said the regulatory body should delay action until Sept. 1 and then make the equity discount and risk a court test. He was outvoted on advice of counsel.

McCormack's bill would overturn the court ruling and give PUCO discount authority in the dozen or so cases still pending under RCN.

Sweet and McCormack both are lobbying for the legislation which is resting in the Senate Ways and Means Committee and must still go through the House.

The legislature is in recess until Sept. 14 when a two or three day session is scheduled. That may be the last gasp for McCormack's bill. By 1977, most, if not all, of the RCN cases will be decided.

"If PUCO follows the General Telephone decision, as it did in the Ohio Bell case (and subsequently in C&SOE), it is estimated that the cost to consumers will be an additional $186 million," McCormack says.

Ohio GOP Delegates See Ford Win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford's Ohio supporters at the Republican National Convention say the latest Associated Press poll of convention delegates shows Ford has almost clinched the Republican nomination.

The AP poll shows Ford within three delegates of the magic 1,130 votes needed for the nomination with 96 delegates still not expressing a preference. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan has 1,036 according to the AP tally.

And, Ohio's lone uncommitted delegate now says she is most concerned with the electability of the Republican nominee, a phrase that Ford supporters are stressing.

Keith McNamara, Ford's Ohio coordinator said Ford's lead indicates the President will win Wednesday night.

"I have been confident that the President will get a first ballot victory ever since this campaign began months ago," McNamara said. "I would anticipate that he would get a majority of those listed as undecided and have a very clear cut victory."

"The delegates have obviously thought this over for a long period of time and are now ready to make their decision and announce it," McNamara said.

The City of Barberton was laid out in 1891 by Ohio Columbus Barber whose strange name was surpassed only by his accomplishments and folly. He founded the Diamond Match Co. in 1880, retired from the company presidency in 1913, poured $3 million into an experimental farm, which included a $400,000 mansion house. He died in 1920 as his famed empire all but collapsed in ruin.

Metro Muggers Keep Police Busy

PARIS (AP) — Muggings and other crimes of violence are escalating in the Paris subway, known here as the Metro. A recent shootout between security men has left some passengers more jittery than ever.

"It's a jungle and the first responsibility lies with the armed men the government is sending there," a leftist group charged after a policeman and a subway guard died in a shootout near the Eiffel Tower, Paris' premier tourist attraction.

An autopsy showed the guard had been drinking.

The guard, in plain clothes, was checking to see if two passengers at the Trocadero station had paid their fares. An argument broke out, and other passengers ran and got two uniformed policemen. When one of the officers tried to intervene, the guard opened fire, killing him. The policeman's partner then shot and killed the guard.

Subway officials said the guard's job was to protect subway property but not check on whether passengers had paid their fares. That task belongs to 300 other plainclothes and uniformed policemen sent into the Metro to counter muggings and other crimes which have escalated 33 per cent in the past year to more than 1,200.

The officers routinely check passengers for identification, sometimes manhandling young men and others they consider obstinate.

A young couple in blue jeans was stopped along with dozens of other passengers the other day at the Gare du Nord, a main trouble spot on the Metro, then released when their documents were found satisfactory.

"It's a show of French police power," the young man said afterwards. "They do it all the time just to show their muscles. To tell you the truth, I'm more afraid of them than the robbers."

Despite fears of police overkill, the No. 1 problem on Paris' Metros and buses is mugging, and some victims are arming themselves with blinding chemical sprays, iron bars and wooden clubs.

"They've robbed me four times, so Saturday nights I lock the cabin door and I go," said one subway engineer. "What happens, happens. Look, I've got five kids and I'm not getting my throat cut."

While the problem is far below the proportions of New York City, which reported 3,949 attacks in its subways last year, it is much greater than London, which estimated 400 violent incidents in 1975; Tokyo, which reported only 10 violent crimes; and Munich, which keeps no figures because it considers the situation "unnoteworthy."

Paris mugging victims say most of their attackers are 15 to 25 years old, armed with knives or clubs, and mixed 50-50 between French and nonwhite foreigners.

Reasons cited for the hike in muggings are chronic unemployment

among French youth, Justice Ministry regulations which free criminals for "good behavior" after serving only a minor portion of their sentences, and the replacement of about 3,000 mass transit workers over the last four years, leaving subway platforms bare of personnel.

Applegate Set For House Ballot

LISBON, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Douglas Applegate, D-30 Steubenville has been named by 18th Congressional District Democratic leaders to replace U.S. Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, on Ohio's November ballot.

Applegate, 45, a state senator since 1968 and before that a member of the Ohio House for four terms, was among three possible candidates considered by the district's Democratic chairmen and other leaders here Monday night.

However, the veteran state lawmaker had been viewed as having the inside track. He withdrew late last week as a candidate for re-election to the Senate, only hours after the embattled Hays bowed out.

After the decision, PUCO raised Ohio Bell Telephone's recommended rate of return from 6.45 per cent to 8.03 per cent, McCormack said. And just last week, Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. won an 8.58 per cent rate of return, the highest ever granted by the commission.

PUCO Commissioner David Sweet, who voted against the C&SOE rate, said the regulatory body should delay action until Sept. 1 and then make the equity discount and risk a court test. He was outvoted on advice of counsel.

McCormack's bill would overturn the court ruling and give PUCO discount authority in the dozen or so cases still pending under RCN.

Sweet and McCormack both are lobbying for the legislation which is resting in the Senate Ways and Means Committee and must still go through the House.

The legislature is in recess until Sept. 14 when a two or three day session is scheduled. That may be the last gasp for McCormack's bill. By 1977, most, if not all, of the RCN cases will be decided.

"If PUCO follows the General Telephone decision, as it did in the Ohio Bell case (and subsequently in C&SOE), it is estimated that the cost to consumers will be an additional $186 million," McCormack says.

Ohio GOP Delegates See Ford Win

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford's Ohio supporters at the Republican National Convention say the latest Associated Press poll of convention delegates shows Ford has almost clinched the Republican nomination.

The AP poll shows Ford within three delegates of the magic 1,130 votes needed for the nomination with 96 delegates still not expressing a preference. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan has 1,036 according to the AP tally.

And, Ohio's lone uncommitted delegate now says she is most concerned with the electability of the Republican nominee, a phrase that Ford supporters are stressing.

Keith McNamara, Ford's Ohio coordinator said Ford's lead indicates the President will win Wednesday night.

"I have been confident that the President will get a first ballot victory ever since this campaign began months ago," McNamara said. "I would anticipate that he would get a majority of those listed as undecided and have a very clear cut victory."

"The delegates have obviously thought this over for a long period of time and are now ready to make their decision and announce it," McNamara said.

The City of Barberton was laid out in 1891 by Ohio Columbus Barber whose strange name was surpassed only by his accomplishments and folly. He founded the Diamond Match Co. in 1880, retired from the company presidency in 1913, poured $3 million into an experimental farm, which included a $400,000 mansion house. He died in 1920 as his famed empire all but collapsed in ruin.

Metro Muggers Keep Police Busy

PARIS (AP) — Muggings and other crimes of violence are escalating in the Paris subway, known here as the Metro. A recent shootout between security men has left some passengers more jittery than ever.

"It's a jungle and the first responsibility lies with the armed men the government is sending there," a leftist group charged after a policeman and a subway guard died in a shootout near the Eiffel Tower, Paris' premier tourist attraction.

An autopsy showed the guard had been drinking.

The guard, in plain clothes, was checking to see if two passengers at the Trocadero station had paid their fares. An argument broke out, and other passengers ran and got two uniformed policemen. When one of the officers tried to intervene, the guard opened fire, killing him. The policeman's partner then shot and killed the guard.

Subway officials said the guard's job was to protect subway property but not check on whether passengers had paid their fares. That task belongs to 300 other plainclothed and uniformed policemen sent into the Metro to counter muggings and other crimes which have escalated 33 per cent in the past year to more than 1,200.

The officers routinely check passengers for identification, sometimes manhandling young men and others they consider obstinate.

A young couple in blue jeans was stopped along with dozens of other passengers the other day at the Gare du Nord, a main trouble spot on the Metro, then released when their documents were found satisfactory.

"It's a show of French police power," the young man said afterwards. "They do it all the time just to show their muscles. To tell you the truth, I'm more afraid of them than the robbers."

Despite fears of police overkill, the No. 1 problem on Paris' Metros and buses is mugging, and some victims are arming themselves with blinding chemical sprays, iron bars and wooden clubs.

"They've robbed me four times, so Saturday nights I lock the cabin door and I go," said one subway engineer. "What happens, happens. Look, I've got five kids and I'm not getting my throat cut."

While the problem is far below the proportions of New York City, which reported 3,949 attacks in its subways last year, it is much greater than London, which estimated 400 violent incidents in 1975; Tokyo, which reported only 10 violent crimes; and Munich, which keeps no figures because it considers the situation "unnoteworthy."

Paris mugging victims say most of their attackers are 15 to 25 years old, armed with knives or clubs, and mixed 50-50 between French and nonwhite foreigners.

Reasons cited for the hike in muggings are chronic unemployment

among French youth, Justice Ministry regulations which free criminals for "good behavior" after serving only a minor portion of their sentences, and the replacement of about 3,000 mass transit workers over the last four years, leaving subway platforms bare of personnel.

Applegate Set For House Ballot

LISBON, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Douglas Applegate, D-30 Steubenville has been named by 18th Congressional District Democratic leaders to replace U.S. Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, on Ohio's November ballot.

Applegate, 45, a state senator since 1968 and before that a member of the Ohio House for four terms, was among three possible candidates considered by the district's Democratic chairmen and other leaders here Monday night.

However, the veteran state lawmaker had been viewed as having the inside track. He withdrew late last week as a candidate for re-election to the Senate, only hours after the embattled Hays bowed out.

Odd Play Helps End A's Win Streak

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN

For it's one, two, three strikes you're out of the old ballgame ... as Billy Williams learned Monday night for the first time in his brilliant 17-year career.

Williams, who had already fanned twice and grounded out, stepped to the plate in the eighth inning with runners at first and third and two out and the Oakland A's clinging to a 3-2 lead over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Danny Frisella pitched, Billy

Williams watched and umpire Bill Kunkel said, "Strike one."

"I figure I know the strike zone pretty well and that first pitch was high and inside," Williams insisted. "I complained. I have a reputation for not complaining, so I guess I'm not supposed to."

Frisella pitched again, Williams watched again and this time Kunkel said, "Strike two."

"The second pitch was on the ground," Williams said, "but because I had complained, it was called a strike. I complained again and he ordered me back into the box. But I wasn't ready to get back in because I figured anything Frisella threw anywhere near the plate would be called strike three. I wasn't ready to be called out that way."

But that's the way it was. Kunkel told Frisella to pitch even though Williams was out of the box and strike three it was, an automatic call in such cases.

What hurt even more was Von Joshua's two-run single in the bottom of the ninth, lifting the Brewers to a 4-3 victory that snapped the A's nine-game winning streak and dropped them eight games behind Kansas City in the American League West.

Elsewhere, Kansas City beat Cleveland 6-1, the New York Yankees downed Texas 5-1, Baltimore trimmed Minnesota 8-4 and Boston whipped the Chicago White Sox 12-5. Detroit and California were not scheduled.

Royals 6, Indians 1

Amos Otis and Tom Poquette hit two-run first-inning homers off Jackie Brown as Kansas City whipped Cleveland behind Marty Pattin's three-hitter, including George Hendrick's 20th homer.

Otis has socked four homers in the last seven games and the latest was the 100th of his career.

Yankees 5, Rangers 1

Mickey Rivers and Fred Stanley homered, Graig Nettles drove in two runs with a double and single and Chris Chambliss slammed a run-scoring double as the Yankees unleashed a 13-hit attack in support of Catfish Hunter's seven-hit pitching.

Orioles 8, Twins 4

Ken Singleton's three-run homer off Tom Burgmeier capped Baltimore's five-run fifth as the Orioles won their fourth in a row to remain 9½ games behind the Yanks. Mark Belanger doubled home the first two runs while Ross Grimsley won for the fifth time in his last six decisions.

Red Sox 12, White Sox 5

Dwight Evans drove in three runs and a shaky Luis Tiant picked up his 13th victory as Boston snapped a three-game losing streak. Tiant allowed nine hits and four runs in five innings before giving way to Bill Lee.

Circleville Cagers Hold Summer Work Programs

Circleville Tiger basketball players made a solid beginning in defense of their district championship with a summer of good basketball preparation and hard work.

Basketball players attended various cage camps with approximately attending camps at different colleges and 31, grades 5 to 8, at the Y camp with coach Jim Diltz.

Numerous hours were put in on the courts at Ted Lewis Park and 26 open gym sessions, in compliance with OHSA regulations, were held at the high school under the supervision of head basketball coach Jim Bailey.

These open gym sessions were attended by the boys and also Natalie Martin, of the 1975-76 girls cage squad.

The summer program concluded with a double elimination one on one tournament. The 1976 summer Tiger basketball champions were: Tim Miltstead, best overall effort and one on one from 15-feet; Monte Shaffer, jumpers off the dribble; Frank Merrill, one on one from six-feet and jump shots without a dribble; Eric Pontious, weak hand shooting; and Mark Albright, free throws.

"As coach I expect and demand a 100 per cent effort," coach Bailey stated. "I work for and hope for 110 per cent performance and I believe many Tigers will become 110 per cent basketball players and people."

"You just can't play during the season but must also play during the off season and we want our boys to play all sports. We have great cooperation in sports at Circleville High School. For example this summer our open gym program alternated with the football conditioning program," coach Bailey concluded.

Circleville's summer program was made successful through the cooperation of all the coaches and former Circleville athletes.

Varsity cage candidates praised by Bailey for making outstanding improvement were: seniors, Frank Merrill, Tom Taylor and Eric Pontious; juniors, Mark Albright, Mark Beck, Richard Boulden and Mike Brudzinski.

Laurelville Women Win Softball Tilts

Laurelville Independent Women's softball team stopped the Sugar Grove Bouncers in both ends of a twinbill at Sugar Grove.

Susan Delong hurled both wins for Laurelville while K. Ebert, D. Young, D. Luckhart, B. Young, S. Delong, J. Smith, M. Whitesed, T. Black, J. Pine and G. Bethel were the big hitters for the winners.

Atlanta Stuns Reds, 4-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves have been a beleaguered tribe since the All-Star break — seven players on crutches and a myriad assortment of ailments and injuries.

"At one time it looked like we were fighting the Civil War again," says Manager Dave Bristol.

With all these walking wounded in Atlanta uniforms, one might suspect that the Cincinnati Reds were caught off guard Monday night. The National League West leaders were ambushed 4-3 by the Braves.

Adrian Devine proved to be the undoing of Cincinnati. Just when the Reds attempted an uprising in the eighth inning, the Braves' relief pitcher put out the fire. It was his fourth save of the season and his third in his last three appearances.

Dan Smith Wins Atomic Feature Race

The rain stopped and the fog held off long enough for Atomic Speedway to get in a full card of racing Saturday night, after being forced to cancel last week due to rain.

While other feature sprint drivers were having trouble keeping their cars on the track, Dan Smith of Liston was quickly maneuvering his way to the front of the field where he then stretched his lead by several car lengths. Hot on his trail was George Harbour, Huntington, W. Va., current leader in sprint feature wins at Atomic. Harbour was holding down second place by the twelfth lap, but Smith managed to fend him off until the checkered flag dropped. Junior Smalley, Waverly finished third.

Sitting in the No. 2 lineup position in the late model feature, Larry Brumfield of Huntington, W. Va., was in the ideal spot to take an early lead, which he did. However, the main battle was staged behind him, with Charlie Swartz, Fred Dillow and Paul Cohan fighting for third place behind Skip Waterman. It was in the eighth lap when Swartz became the victor and started challenging Waterman for second, but a flat tire in the 13th lap sent him into the wall. Paul Cohan of Jackson finished third as he and Waterman of Columbus battled right up to the line.

The starting field of 13 cars had dwindled to six by the end of the hobby stock feature. Richard Morehead passed frontrunner Jim Porter in the fifth lap to take over the lead and hold it, while six-time winner Dick French was moving up through the pack to try and oust him. Morehead shut him out, however, and French finished second, followed by Dave Williams.

Fast qualifiers were Harbour, in sprints, with 14.92, and Al Nuttury, of South Point with 17.25 in late models.

Midget racing returns to Atomic this week for the second time this season. Also on the bill will be super sprints and late models.

CHS Golf Candidates To Meet Thursday

There will be a meeting and practice for all boys who want to be candidates for the Circleville High School Golf Team 3 p.m. Thursday at Pickaway Country Club it was announced today by coach Steve Brudzinski.

"He's one of the seven guys we've had on crutches since mid-summer," acknowledged Bristol.

Pete Rose reached some plateau for the Reds, his 2,700th career hit and his 100th run scored this season. Still, he would have traded both of them for a victory.

"I should have tried it sooner," said Rose of his bunt single in the eighth inning that ignited the rally that drove Carl Morton to the showers. "We were dead. We needed something to get us going."

In the only other National League games Monday night, the San Diego Padres outscored the St. Louis Cardinals 11-7 and the Chicago Cubs whipped the Houston Astros 5-3.

Morton, 3-9, allowed five hits in 7 2/3 innings, overcoming the 10-strikeout pitching of Fred Norman, 11-3, whose lifetime record at Riverfront Stadium dropped to 32-8.

After Morton gave up two runs in the eighth that cut the Atlanta lead to 4-3, he was tagged for a two-out triple by George Foster. Devine came on at this point and forced Tony Perez to ground out and retired the Reds 1-2-3 in the ninth. It was the Reds' third straight defeat, matching their longest losing streak of the season.

Padres 11, Cardinals 7

Willie Davis smacked a two-run double and Enzo Hernandez a bases-loaded triple to highlight an eight-run ninth inning that carried San Diego over St. Louis. The outburst by the Padres, at the expense of four Cardinal pitchers, nullified a five-hit performance by St. Louis' Lou Brock.

Cubs 5, Astros 3

Rob Sperring's two-run single with two out in the ninth inning broke a 3-3 tie, lifting Chicago over Houston. Bruce Sutter, 3-3, hurled the final two innings for the Cubs to gain the victory. Houston starter Larry Dierker, 12-11, absorbed the loss.

Dan Smith Wins Atomic Feature Race

The rain stopped and the fog held off long enough for Atomic Speedway to get in a full card of racing Saturday night, after being forced to cancel last week due to rain.

While other feature sprint drivers were having trouble keeping their cars on the track, Dan Smith of Liston was quickly maneuvering his way to the front of the field where he then stretched his lead by several car lengths. Hot on his trail was George Harbour, Huntington, W. Va., current leader in sprint feature wins at Atomic. Harbour was holding down second place by the twelfth lap, but Smith managed to fend him off until the checkered flag dropped. Junior Smalley, Waverly finished third.

Sitting in the No. 2 lineup position in the late model feature, Larry Brumfield of Huntington, W. Va., was in the ideal spot to take an early lead, which he did. However, the main battle was staged behind him, with Charlie Swartz, Fred Dillow and Paul Cohan fighting for third place behind Skip Waterman. It was in the eighth lap when Swartz became the victor and started challenging Waterman for second, but a flat tire in the 13th lap sent him into the wall. Paul Cohan of Jackson finished third as he and Waterman of Columbus battled right up to the line.

The starting field of 13 cars had dwindled to six by the end of the hobby stock feature. Richard Morehead passed frontrunner Jim Porter in the fifth lap to take over the lead and hold it, while six-time winner Dick French was moving up through the pack to try and oust him. Morehead shut him out, however, and French finished second, followed by Dave Williams.

Fast qualifiers were Harbour, in sprints, with 14.92, and Al Nuttrey, of South Point with 17.25 in late models. Midget racing returns to Atomic this week for the second time this season. Also on the bill will be super sprints and late models.

CHS Golf Candidates To Meet Thursday

There will be a meeting and practice for all boys who want to be candidates for the Circleville High School Golf Team 3 p.m. Thursday at Pickaway Country Club it was announced today by coach Steve Brudzinski.

"He's one of the seven guys we've had on crutches since mid-summer," acknowledged Bristol.

Pete Rose reached some plateaus for the Reds, his 2,700th career hit and his 100th run scored this season. Still, he would have traded both of them for a victory.

"I should have tried it sooner," said Rose of his bunt single in the eighth inning that ignited the rally that drove Carl Morton to the showers. "We were dead. We needed something to get us going."

In the only other National League games Monday night, the San Diego Padres outscored the St. Louis Cardinals 11-7 and the Chicago Cubs whipped the Houston Astros 5-3.

Morton, 3-9, allowed five hits in 7 2-3 innings, overcoming the 10-strikeout pitching of Fred Norman, 11-3, whose lifetime record at Riverfront Stadium dropped to 32-8.

After Morton gave up two runs in the eighth that cut the Atlanta lead to 4-3, he was tagged for a two-out triple by George Foster. Devine came on at this point and forced Tony Perez to ground out and retired the Reds 1-2-3 in the ninth. It was the Reds' third straight defeat, matching their longest losing streak of the season.

Padres 11, Cardinals 7

Willie Davis smacked a two-run double and Enzo Hernandez a bases-loaded triple to highlight an eight-run ninth inning that carried San Diego over St. Louis. The outburst by the Padres, at the expense of four Cardinal pitchers, nullified a five-hit performance by St. Louis' Lou Brock.

Cubs 5, Astros 3

Rob Sperring's two-run single with two out in the ninth inning broke a 3-3 tie, lifting Chicago over Houston. Bruce Sutter, 3-3, hurled the final two innings for the Cubs to gain the victory. Houston starter Larry Dierker, 12-11, absorbed the loss.

Circleville Cagers Hold Summer Work Programs

Circleville Tiger basketball players made a solid beginning in defense of their district championship with a summer of good basketball preparation and hard work.

Basketball players attended various cage camps with approximately attending camps at different colleges and 31, grades 5 to 8, at the Y camp with coach Jim Diltz.

Numberous hours were put in on the courts at Ted Lewis Park and 26 open gym sessions, in compliance with OHSAA regulations, were held at the high school under the supervision of head basketball coach Jim Bailey.

These open gym sessions were attended by the boys and also Natalie Martin, of the 1975-76 girls cage squad.

The summer program concluded with a double elimination one on one tournament. The 1976 summer Tiger basketball champions were: Tim Milstead, best overall effort and one on one from 15-feet; Monte Shaffer, jumpers off the dribble; Frank Merrill, one on one from six-feet and jump shots without a dribble; Eric Pontious, weak hand shooting; and Mark Albright, free throws.

"As coach I expect and demand a 100 per cent effort," coach Bailey stated. "I work for and hope for 110 per cent performance and I believe many Tigers will become 110 per cent basketball players and people."

"You just can't play during the season but must also play during the off season and we want our boys to play all sports. We have great cooperation in sports at Circleville High School. For example this summer our open gym program alternated with the football conditioning program," coach Bailey concluded.

Circleville's summer program was made successful through the cooperation of all the coaches and former Circleville athletes.

Varsity cage candidates praised by Bailey for making outstanding improvement were: seniors, Frank Merrill, Tom Taylor and Eric Pontious; juniors, Mark Albright, Mark Beck, Richard Boulden and Mike Brudzinski.

Dave Stockton Wins PGA Championship

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Dave Stockton predicted three days before the end of the PGA national championship that he would win. Few believed him.

"I'm a positive thinker," said Stockton, a student of psychocybernetics, the science of mind over matter. "I play well in the PGA more often than not."

But even Stockton, scrambler extraordinaire, admitted he was shocked to learn that he led by only one stroke in Monday's final round Monday of the rain-delayed PGA tournament as he strolled down the 18th fairway. His worst fear — a sudden death playoff.

"I really chopped it up on the 13th and 14th holes and I didn't want to go back out there for a playoff," he said, adding with a smile: "I wouldn't have been the favorite."

The 34-year-old Stockton, using a three-wood because he had been wild with his driver, put his ball slightly to the right near the rough on No. 18, a 465-yard par four. He was short of the green by about five feet with a two iron, the ball on a slight downslope. He chipped to about 15 feet of the pin.

Then, with the $45,000 first prize on the line, Stockton did what he does most often — he sank the 15-foot putt to give him the title by a single stroke at 281, one over par on the Congressional Country Club course, playground of presidents in the Washington, D.C., suburb.

Stockton's one-putt on the 72nd hole was a repeat of his performance during the last 36 holes of the tournament that was twice-delayed because of rain, causing the championship round to be held on Monday.

In the last two rounds, Stockton needed only 51 putts — 25 on Saturday and 26 on Monday — which he said was about normal for him.

He needed the hot putter, however, because his driver went awry.

Stockton, who had rounds of 70, 72, 69 and 70, gained an advantage when three earlier leaders — Charles Coody, Jack Nicklaus and Don January — suffered double bogeys on the final round.

Masters champion Ray Floyd and the veteran January tied for second — they were watching by the 18th green hoping to gain a playoff spot — at 282. January had a 72 on the final round, Floyd a 71.

Defending champion Nicklaus, Australian David Graham, John Schlee and rookie Jerry Pate, the U.S. and Canadian Open champion, were another stroke back at 283.

Ohio Sires Stakes Continue At Scioto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coaltown Charlie and Charbos Jet won the featured fourth and sixth races at Scioto Downs harness track Monday night in the continuation of the Ohio Sires Stakes for two-year-old colt trotters.

Coaltown Charlie covered the mile in the fourth in 2:09.1 and returned his backers $7.80, $4.00, and $2.60.

Rules Changes Make Radial Series Better

MANSFIELD — The cars may look the same when the International Motor Sports Assn. Radial Challenge series comes to the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course on Aug. 28-29, but a lot of major rules changes will make America's closest-fought series even closer.

The $19,125 Radial Challenge 3-Hour race will be part of the $70,025 Annual IMSA 6-Hour weekend on Mid-Ohio's twisting 2.4-mile road racing circuit, sharing the bill with the $39,900 Camel GT Challenge 3-Hour, and the $11,000 Formula Atlantic 100-mile races.

Most importantly, the prerequisite tire for the 60-plus cars to compete in Mid-Ohio's Radial race has been changed to Goodyear GT Radials, a change which may seem insignificant, but has caused most competitive teams to make major changes in their suspensions to handle the new tire brand.

The Radial Challenge series this year is divided into two parts. The first seven-race series was concluded at Mid-Ohio in June with Carson Baird of Laurel, Md, nosing out Don Devendorf of Los Angeles by just 1.1 seconds, giving Baird the series title. In the "second season," Mid-Ohio is the fifth of eight races and is currently led by Walt Bohren of Flemington, N.J., driving a Mazda. Baird races a factory-backed Dodge Colt and Devendorf competes with a Datsun B210 receiving heavy factory backing.

Devendorf has only competed in eight of the 1976 races, has won twice and only failed to finish once. His performance has been so competitive that IMSA officials ordered that he add another 100 pounds of weight to his car. After that, he finished second and first, putting him and Gremlin driver Gene Felton of Atlanta in a two-way tie for second place.

Felton currently leads the brigade of American Motors drivers in Gremlins, Pacers and Hornets, but the AMC cars are now coming on strong, now that IMSA has removed its rules requiring those cars, as well as the BMW's, to use carburetor restrictor plates because of their domination of the 1975 series.

In fact, after a season of frustration, Amos Johnson won his first race in the Levi's Team Highball Pacer out of Raleigh, N.C. Johnson, the 1974 Mid-Ohio 6-Hour winner, had a best previous finish of fifth here in June.

Also benefitting from the rules change is veteran BMW driver Nick Craw of Washington, D.C., whose Miller & Norburn Racing BMW 2002 won at Mid-Ohio in 1973 and 1975. Craw switched to a fuel injected engine this year and, despite the apparent extra power, has had more engine failures (roughly a dozen), than most teams experience in a lifetime.

Knurd Victorious In Latonia Feature

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Knurd, a 3-year-old filly, rushed out of third place down the stretch and won the featured pace by half a length Monday night at Latonia.

The winner, driven by Omar Hiteman, went the mile in 2:06 to return $6.40, $4.00 and $3.40. Brady's Pence paid $5.40 and $3.20. The show horse was Lightning Purdue at $3.20.

The daily double paid $55.60 on the 1-3 combination of Oak Case and March Bolo.

Griffin Doing Well In Football, Business

CINCINNATI (AP) — Despite not having appeared in a single regular season game as a professional, Archie Griffin has already scored well in the business world.

The two-time Heisman Trophy winner already has contracts with three national marketers: Doubleday & Co., book publisher; Bristol Myers, and the Shoe Corp. of America.

A writer is already in the Cincinnati Bengals training camp working on a book about Griffin's rookie year; Bristol Myers' local subsidiary uses Griffin in a testimonial for a canned training table beverage; while Shoe Corp. will use Archie in ads for its suede, all purpose leisure shoe.

On a smaller scale, manufacturers are preparing an Archie Griffin T-Shirt and even an Archie Griffin dart board.

A professional agent estimates these deals may be worth as much as $50,000 for Griffin, certainly not in the class of Jack Nicklaus or O.J. Simpson, but a good start for the former Ohio State star.

Leading the way down the business field is Griffin's older brother James Jr.

James Griffin, an actuary with a Columbus, Ohio, insurance firm, admits to inexperience in merchandising, but adds, "Frankly, from what I've seen, I don't think other agents would have done much more. And it's safe to say every major agent in the country was after Archie."

Archie says he's happy with the arrangement which was set up after his last collegiate game, the Hula Bowl on Jan. 10.

"I've always looked up to Jim, being the older brother you know," he said. "And if you can't trust your brother, who can you trust? He handles everything and that takes the burden off me so I can concentrate on football."

Jim Griffin declines to give his brother's price these days for business deals, but it is bound to rise if Archie continues to shine as he did against Buffalo when he ran for a 48-yard touchdown.

Jim said he has two "major" deals now in negotiation and hopes to lure business with a one-time ad in Advertising Age which reads "Use Archie Griffin To Sell Your Product."

"Archie's available now," his brother said, "but if a couple of the agreements come through we may not want any more for awhile."

One veteran agent thinks the Griffins have the right approach.

"When you do hit you have to be ready to capitalize," he said. "A lot of guys don't have the right setup, and miss their chance."

His worst fear — a sudden death playoff. "I really chopped it up on the 13th and 14th holes and I didn't want to go back out there for a playoff," he said, adding with a smile: "I wouldn't have been the favorite."

The 34-year-old Stockton, using a three-wood because he had been wild with his driver, put his ball slightly to the right near the rough on No. 18, a 465-yard par four. He was short of the green by about five feet with a two iron, the ball on a slight downslope. He chipped to about 15 feet of the pin.

Then, with the $45,000 first prize on the line, Stockton did what he does most often — he sank the 15-foot putt to give him the title by a single stroke at 281, one over par on the Congressional Country Club course, playground of presidents in the Washington, D.C., suburb.

Stockton's one-putt on the 72nd hole was a repeat of his performance during the last 36 holes of the tournament that was twice-delayed because of rain, causing the championship round to be held on Monday.

In the last two rounds, Stockton needed only 51 putts — 25 on Saturday and 26 on Monday — which he said was about normal for him.

He needed the hot putter, however, because his driver went awry.

Stockton, who had rounds of 70, 72, 69 and 70, gained an advantage when three earlier leaders — Charles Coody, Jack Nicklaus and Don January — suffered double bogeys on the final round.

Masters champion Ray Floyd and the veteran January tied for second — they were watching by the 18th green hoping to gain a playoff spot — at 282. January had a 72 on the final round, Floyd a 71.

Defending champion Nicklaus, Australian David Graham, John Schlee and rookie Jerry Pate, the U.S. and Canadian Open champion, were another stroke back at 283.

Rules Changes Make Radial Series Better

MANSFIELD — The cars may look the same when the International Motor Sports Assn. Radial Challenge series comes to the Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course on Aug. 28-29, but a lot of major rule changes will make America's closest-fought series even closer.

The $19,125 Radial Challenge 3-Hour race will be part of the $70,025 Annual IMSA 6-Hour weekend on Mid-Ohio's twisting 2.4-mile road racing circuit, sharing the bill with the $39,900 Camel GT Challenge 3-Hour, and the $11,000 Formula Atlantic 100-mile races.

Most importantly, the prerequisite tire for the 60-plus cars to compete in Mid-Ohio's Radial race has been changed to Goodyear GT Radials, a change which may seem insignificant, but has caused most competitive teams to make major changes in their suspensions to handle the new tire brand.

The Radial Challenge series this year is divided into two parts. The first seven-race series was concluded at Mid-Ohio in June with Carson Baird of Laurel, Md, nosing out Don Devendorf of Los Angeles by just 1.1 seconds, giving Baird the series title. In the "second season," Mid-Ohio is the fifth of eight races and is currently led by Walt Bohren of Flemington, N.J., driving a Mazda. Baird races a factory-backed Dodge Colt and Devendorf competes with a Datsun B210 receiving heavy factory backing.

Devendorf has only competed in eight of the 1976 races, has won twice and only failed to finish once. His performance has been so competitive that IMSA officials ordered that he add another 100 pounds of weight to his car. After that, he finished second and first, putting him and Gremlin driver Gene Felton of Atlanta in a two-way tie for second place.

Felton currently leads the brigade of American Motors drivers in Gremlins, Pacers and Hornets, but the AMC cars are now coming on strong, now that IMSA has removed its rules requiring those cars, as well as the BMW's, to use carburetor restrictor plates because of their domination of the 1975 series.

In fact, after a season of frustration, Amos Johnson won his first race in the Levi's Team Highball Pacer out of Raleigh, N.C. Johnson, the 1974 Mid-Ohio 6-Hour winner, had a best previous finish of fifth here in June.

Also benefitting from the rules change is veteran BMW driver Nick Crow of Washington, D.C., whose Miller & Norburn Racing BMW 2002 won at Mid-Ohio in 1973 and 1975. Crow switched to a fuel injected engine this year and, despite the apparent extra power, has had more engine failures (roughly a dozen), than most teams experience in a lifetime.

Griffin Doing Well In Football, Business

CINCINNATI (AP) — Despite not having appeared in a single regular season game as a professional, Archie Griffin has already scored well in the business world.

The two-time Heisman Trophy winner already has contracts with three national marketers: Doubleday & Co., book publisher; Bristol Myers, and the Shoe Corp. of America.

A writer is already in the Cincinnati Bengals training camp working on a book about Griffin's rookie year; Bristol Myers' local subsidiary uses Griffin in a testimonial for a canned training table beverage; while Shoe Corp. will use Archie in ads for its suede, all purpose leisure shoe.

On a smaller scale, manufacturers are preparing an Archie Griffin T-Shirt and even an Archie Griffin dart board.

A professional agent estimates these deals may be worth as much as $50,000 for Griffin, certainly not in the class of Jack Nicklaus or O.J. Simpson, but a good start for the former Ohio State star.

Leading the way down the business field is Griffin's older brother James Jr.

James Griffin, an actuary with a Columbus, Ohio, insurance firm, admits to inexperience in merchandising, but adds, "Frankly, from what I've seen, I don't think other agents would have done much more. And it's safe to say every major agent in the country was after Archie."

Archie says he's happy with the arrangement which was set up after his last collegiate game, the Hula Bowl on Jan. 10.

"I've always looked up to Jim, being the older brother you know," he said. "And if you can't trust your brother, who can you trust? He handles everything and that takes the burden off me so I can concentrate on football."

Jim Griffin declines to give his brother's price these days for business deals, but it is bound to rise if Archie continues to shine as he did against Buffalo when he ran for a 48-yard touchdown.

Jim said he has two "major" deals now in negotiation and hopes to lure business with a one-time ad in Advertising Age which reads "Use Archie Griffin To Sell Your Product."

"Archie's available now," his brother said, "but if a couple of the agreements come through we may not want any more for awhile."

One veteran agent thinks the Griffin has the right approach.

"When you do hit you have to be ready to capitalize," he said. "A lot of guys don't have the right setup, and miss their chance."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Influences favorable in part, but day requires more effort, steady application of your skills and knowledge. Cooperation with right forces vital.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Venus, auspicious, encourages artistic pursuits, romance, domestic interests. Day spells action, determination. Plan wisely.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): If you happen to get a late start, pick up your pace as you go along. Your fine mind and quick comprehension of unusual situations should be stimulated now.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You can make a bright new place for yourself with a little more diligence and a gracious demeanor. Use a practical arena for trying out ideas before putting them into effect.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Routine, the things you planned and expected would run "just-so" may suffer a setback. Take in stride, however, and go on to something else until "clouds" lift and you get a better perspective.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Pitch into activities with verve, confidence, your usual know-how. If new propositions are made, however, give them careful study. Don't be caught off guard by surface glitter.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Some requests may annoy, but think them over carefully. Compliance COULD prove profitable in the long run — and bring you satisfaction as well.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): By interpreting situations arbitrarily, you may miss intended meanings. Do not hesitate to call in clever associates for better understanding. Day needs collaboration, teamwork.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your competition will be keen now, but the challenge should prove stimulating. A good chance to display your ingenuity and know-how.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Day calls for your steady heart and hand. Don't try to swim against the tide and don't try to force issues.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A day which you can mold pretty much to your liking. Take a firm and knowing hand early and plan your schedule smartly. Make no snap decisions, however.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Self-reliance should be your keyword now. Don't let others do your thinking for you. Neither let anyone sway you from a worthwhile course.

YOU BORN TODAY are governed by Leo, the Lion, and so are endowed with great magnetism, strength of character and purpose, enthusiasm and a zest for living. You are a born leader and lend power and influence to all activities, but must learn to wield authority with discretion. Your pride, which is often excessive, tends to make you domineering and this you must conquer if you are to keep the many friends you make along life's road. You are extremely versatile and could succeed in almost any field of your choosing — properly educated, of course. Grapes Help Billingham

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds pitcher Jack Billingham has pulled himself out of Manager Sparky Anderson's doghouse with the aid of a grapefruit, grapes, pears and cottage cheese.

He has dieted and as he shed pounds, he also shed points off his earned run average. And a slimmer Billingham won three straight games on the team's recent successful road trip.

Billingham's problems began when he left for spring training, weighing in at 217, just four pounds over his pitching weight last year.

However, this was the year when spring training was delayed, and by the time it had started Billingham had ballooned to 230.

Surprisingly, he pitched well and told Anderson he felt the extra weight would help him.

"What I didn't realize was that I wasn't talking about two weeks of spring training. I was talking about six months of the season. I was only fooling myself," Billingham said.

Once the season started, he found himself saddled with a fat earned run average.

"He was the biggest disappointment of all our pitchers," said pitching coach Larry Shepard. "He was throwing so well in the spring."

"If spring training had gone like it was supposed to everything would have been all right," added Billingham, "but I usually gain weight the first two weeks of the spring, then take it off. This year, after two weeks, it was time to start the season."

Finally, Billingham resolved to lose the weight and started munching on all the fruit he could find. While the team was in San Francisco, for example, he took a side trip to Chinatown and grabbed as much fresh fruit as he could find.

"Whenever I got hungry, I just went up to the room and had some grapes," he said.

His pre-game meal before his start in San Francisco? "Grapefruit wedges and cottage cheese," he said.

His weight has gone from 230 to 215 and he adds "I feel better."

He's also making the Reds coaches and Anderson feel better because his victories are all the more important as the team nears the playoff season.

Shingles

VALLEY Forge, (AP) — If the asphalt shingles installed on American homes were out, they would circle globe 1,480 times at equator, a distance of million miles.

Research conducted by Home Institute of Certified Corp. shows American home-owners have installed more than 65 billion of weather-proof shingles.

Ford Nears . . .

—“Agreements that are negotiated, such as the one signed in Helsinki, must not take from those who do not have freedom the hope of one day gaining it.”

—“Finally, we are committed to a foreign policy in which secret agreements, hidden from our people, will have no part.”

Ford signed and Reagan assailed the Helsinki agreement on future East-West relations in Europe.

Another platform fight is likely to occur on the abortion issue. But that does not involve a test between Ford and Reagan supporters. Some platform committee members plan a floor fight to delete an endorsement of “the efforts of those who seek enactment of a constitutional amendment to restore protection of the right to life for unborn children.”

The convention, the 31st in the history of the Republican party and one of the most divided, opened at 10:30 a.m., CDT Monday. In the tradition of most opening sessions of political conventions, it was devoted to a succession of speeches to which few delegates appeared to listen.

One message was clear: Fight for the candidate of your choice, but don't forget to unite once the battle is decided. And don't forget, the Democrats and Jimmy Carter are waiting around the corner.

Speaker after speaker labeled the Democrats as free spenders whose platform would cost $200 billion a year to implement — a claim Carter disputed during the day from his home in Georgia. Carter was castigated as wishy-washy on the issues.

The opening day was split between morning and afternoon sessions. The oratorical highlight was the keynote speech by Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, regarded as one of the leading prospects for the vice presidential nomination on a ticket headed by Ford.

Baker opened his speech with a call for “straight talk and for common sense. For straight talk about the condition of our party, and for common sense about the needs of our nation.”

Paid Days Off Sought By Auto Workers

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, finally unwrapping its plan for increasing job security, has demanded the Big Three automakers give employees more paid time off — possibly one day each month — to preserve current positions and create new ones.

The reduced work time proposal, placed before company bargainers Fighting To Continue In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt today vowed a fight to the death against Christian and Syrian forces trying to drive his Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies from the mountains east of Beirut.

“We will not withdraw as much as one iota,” Jumblatt declared. “We will defend our positions in the mountain area because it is for us a battle for survival.”

The Libyan undersecretary for foreign affairs, Abu Zaid Dourdah, conferred with Jumblatt and Palestinian chieftain Yasir Arafat. The Moslems' Beirut Radio said he told them Libya would continue its “unlimited support” to their forces.

Jumblatt's statement defied an ultimatum from Christian President Suleiman Franjeh, who in a broadcast Monday night said the Christians would not stop fighting until the Palestinians returned to their 15 refugee camps and observed longdead agreements restricting their military activity in Lebanon.

Since the fall of the Tal Zaatar camp last week, the Christians have been massing forces in the Meten area 18 miles east of the capital with the announced intention of ousting Moslem and Palestinian forces occupying traditionally Christian towns and villages in the mountains.

Tourist Centers Do Big Business

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio tourist centers have provided information to 220,772 travelers so far this season, state officials said Monday.

Since the first week of operation in June, the 14 centers have averaged a total of 2,500 visitors a week, Department of Economic and Community Development Director James Duerk said.

Duerk said tourism generates more than $2.3 billion annually and means 123,000 jobs.

Early morning temperatures more typical of late September than mid-August sent low records for the date falling in three cities.

Youngstown's 45 was the officials cool spot today and broke the 1962 record. Toledo's 46 and 47 in Mansfield both snapped a 1971 mark. Findlay tied its 1958 record with 50 degrees.

A large high pressure centered in southern Lake Michigan this morning spread cold Canadian air across the state and caused the temperatures to drop so low.

As the high drifted slowly southward, skies were expected to remain mostly sunny today and Wednesday. This allowed afternoon readings to climb into the 70s to the low 80s today, dropping back to the 50s Wednesday morning and improving to the 80s Wednesday afternoon.

Temperatures will continue to moderate toward the end of the week as summer returns to the state.

Conventioners See Television 'Biggies'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The trouble with being a member of the North Carolina delegation down there on the floor at the GOP National Convention is that the TV cameras block your view of Walter Cronkite. And John Chancellor and David Brinkley.

The platforms bearing the TV cameras and photographers weren't obstructing our view of the ABC booth way above us and to the right. But I didn't see Harry Reasoner or Howard K. Smith. Their booth seemed poorly lit, with only a few TV monitors dimly glowing.

It was in sharp contrast to the bright, unexpectedly hot lights under which your observer sat in the crowded Kemper arena, posing as a North Carolina delegate. Around this bogus delegate sat 53 other delegates, all the genuine article from the Tarheel state.

The object of my exercise was to watch the network troops watch us, with or without their TV camera and microphones, as the convention commenced in prime time before millions of viewers across the nation Monday night.

In the unlikely event CBS's Dan Rather, NBC's Cassie Mackin or ABC's Ann Compton thrust forward a microphone and sought my views as a North Carolinian, a plan was devised with aid of a kindly delegate sitting next to me.

She was Mrs. Karol Goebel, a Greensboro housewife, mother of two and co-chairman of Ronald Reagan's primary campaign in Guilford County, N.C. She said she'd tell the reporters her friend had a very bad sore throat and couldn't speak.

So from 7 p.m. CDT to 8:15 p.m. I observed in mortal fear of detection. Tell the truth, it was kind of boring. CBS's Morton Dean and Miss Mackin initially stood to the front of us, up near the podium several hundred yards away, casing the joint, possibly peering at the 154-member New York delegation behind us.

But nothing happened. After the pledge of allegiance, prayer and the national anthem, I stretched my neck and saw Dan Rather up front near the Michigan delegation interviewing a man in a red golf cap. Couldn't hear a man.

I'd heard that network floor reporters tend to cluster when they get a live one. But the only cluster came when Betty Ford, two sons and one daughter, and Vice-President Rockefeller's wife entered the arena to heavy cheering.

Only two TV cameras per network are allowed at any one time on the convention floor, so there were quite a few times the well-known, well-paid correspondents working our area were seen striding purposefully about without a crew.

It was sort of like watching a championship bronco-busting contest without broncos — all those folks leaping up and down with nothing beneath them.

But watching the convention with my delegates — who showed no interest in the correspondents — was mighty impressive. With all its power to convey images, television just can't convey the often intense excitement that flows back and forth on the floor.

Ford Nears . . .

—“Agreements that are negotiated, such as the one signed in Helsinki, must not take from those who do not have freedom the hope of one day gaining it.”

—“Finally, we are committed to a foreign policy in which secret agreements, hidden from our people, will have no part.”

Ford signed and Reagan assailed the Helsinki agreement on future East-West relations in Europe.

Another platform fight is likely to occur on the abortion issue. But that does not involve a test between Ford and Reagan supporters. Some platform committee members plan a floor fight to delete an endorsement of “the efforts of those who seek enactment of a constitutional amendment to restore protection of the right to life for unborn children.”

The convention, the 31st in the history of the Republican party and one of the most divided, opened at 10:30 a.m., CDT Monday. In the tradition of most opening sessions of political conventions, it was devoted to a succession of speeches to which few delegates appeared to listen.

One message was clear: Fight for the candidate of your choice, but don't forget to unite once the battle is decided. And don't forget, the Democrats and Jimmy Carter are waiting around the corner.

Speaker after speaker labeled the Democrats as free spenders whose platform would cost $200 billion a year to implement — a claim Carter disputed during the day from his home in Georgia. Carter was castigated as wishy-washy on the issues.

The opening day was split between morning and afternoon sessions. The oratorical highlight was the keynote speech by Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, regarded as one of the leading prospects for the vice presidential nomination on a ticket headed by Ford.

Baker opened his speech with a call for “straight talk and for common sense. For straight talk about the condition of our party, and for common sense about the needs of our nation.”

Paid Days Off Sought By Auto Workers

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, finally unwrapping its plan for increasing job security, has demanded the Big Three automakers give employees more paid time off — possibly one day each month — to preserve current positions and create new ones.

The reduced work time proposal, placed before company bargainers

Monday at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, was the union's first clear signal of the route it has chosen for bolstering job security in new labor contracts.

The union has said since the spring that shortened work time would be its top priority in this year's talks but it had not issued any specific proposals.

Separately, the UAW said its international board would meet Aug. 24 to select one of the three companies as the “target” for either reaching a pattern settlement or striking when current three-year pacts expire on Sept. 14. Bargaining at the other companies will cease until a settlement is reached with the target.

The union likely will pick either Ford, the target in 1967, or GM, which was tagged in 1970. Chrysler was the target during the last triennial round of talks in 1973.

The union's reduced work time demand called for an unspecified number of paid days off each year on top of the 30 days which auto workers already receive under current holiday and vacation programs.

Union officials said the plan would open up additional jobs by forcing the companies to hire more employees to fill in for those who are off.

The proposal also lays to rest speculation the union would take a more radical approach by demanding a four-day work week.

“We're not asking for a four-day week,” said UAW Vice President Ken Bannon, head of the union's Ford department. “No way in 1976.”

The UAW would not say exactly how many additional days off it would seek, saying that will be determined in negotiations. But Bannon suggested, as an example, one day off a month — equal a 5 per cent reduction in current work time.

“That could be the minimum we're after, or the maximum,” he said. “... for example purposes, we mentioned one day per month. It could be more.”

Ford bargainer Robert M. Middlekauff contended, however, that his understanding of the union's proposal “would amount to at least one additional day per month.”

Terming the plan “unacceptable,” Middlekauff said it represents “the largest single amount of vacation time sought at Ford in one chunk” since the start of a vacation pay plan in the early 1940s.

Fighting To Continue In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist leader Kamal Jumblatt today vowed a fight to the death against Christian and Syrian forces trying to drive his Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies from the mountains east of Beirut.

“We will not withdraw as much as one iota,” Jumblatt declared. “We will defend our positions in the mountain area because it is for us a battle for survival.”

The Libyan undersecretary for foreign affairs, Abu Zeid Dourdah, conferred with Jumblatt and Palestinian chieftain Yasar Arafat. The Moslems' Beirut Radio said he told them Libya would continue its “unlimited support” to their forces.

Jumblatt's statement defied an ultimatum from Christian President Suleiman Franjeh, who in a broadcast Monday night said the Christians would not stop fighting until the Palestinians returned to their 15 refugee camps and observed longdead agreements restricting their military activity in Lebanon.

Since the fall of the Tal Zaatar camp last week, the Christians have been massing forces in the Meten area 18 miles east of the capital with the announced intention of ousting Moslem and Palestinian forces occupying traditionally Christian towns and villages in the mountains.

Tourist Centers Do Big Business

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio tourist centers have provided information to 220,772 travelers so far this season, state officials said Monday.

Since the first week of operation in June, the 14 centers have averaged a total of 2,500 visitors a week, Department of Economic and Community Development Director James Duerk said.

Duerk said tourism generates more than $2.3 billion annually and means 123,000 jobs.

Early morning temperatures more typical of late September than mid-August sent low records for the date falling in three cities.

Youngstown's 45 was the officials cool spot today and broke the 1962 record. Toledo's 46 and 47 in Mansfield both snapped a 1971 mark. Findlay tied its 1958 record with 50 degrees.

A large high pressure centered in southern Lake Michigan this morning spread cold Canadian air across the state and caused the temperatures to drop so low.

As the high drifted slowly southward, skies were expected to remain mostly sunny today and Wednesday. This allowed afternoon readings to climb into the 70s to the low 80s today, dropping back to the 50s Wednesday morning and improving to the 80s Wednesday afternoon.

Temperatures will continue to moderate toward the end of the week as summer returns to the state.

Conventioners See Television 'Biggies'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The trouble with being a member of the North Carolina delegation down there on the floor at the GOP National Convention is that the TV cameras block your view of Walter Cronkite. And John Chancellor and David Brinkley.

The platforms bearing the TV cameras and photographers weren't obstructing our view of the ABC booth way above us and to the right. But I didn't see Harry Reasoner or Howard K. Smith. Their booth seemed poorly lit, with only a few TV monitors dimly glowing.

It was in sharp contrast to the bright, unexpectedly hot lights under which your observer sat in the crowded Kemper arena, posing as a North Carolina delegate. Around this bogus delegate sat 53 other delegates, all the genuine article from the Tarheel state.

The object of my exercise was to watch the network troops watch us, with or without their TV camera and microphones, as the convention commenced in prime time before millions of viewers across the nation Monday night.
